Took Chloroform.

Mark Forin, who resides at the corner of Houghton and Sherman Streets, and has been employed as a carpenter for a number of years here, attempted suicide yesterday noon, by taking chloroform. It appears that he has been drinking more or less recently, and shortly before noon had a slight dispute with his daughter, whereupon he came down town and going to the Fritz pharmacy enquired for some chloroform for neuralgia. Mr. Fritz advised him to see a doctor, but he demurred, who told him "if he was so near dead he'd better go to the cemetery." He finally secured half an ounce and went home, refusing dinner, and went upstairs. Shortly after his little girl, according to the story told by the family, found him sitting on the bed, and could not get him to answer her. She gave an alarm and other members of the family got him down stairs and then ran across to D. J. Landon's on the opposite side of the street, when Mrs. Landon at once telephoned for Dr. A. N. Treadgold. She went to the house and enquired what he had taken and upon learning what it was began rolling him and keeping him in motion as much as possible until the doctor arrived. After some good earnest work on the part of doctor he came to consciousness, but acted dazed for a considerable length of time. He passed a very restless night and despite medical aid again summoned this morning, he passed away shortly after ten o'clock. He was a man of a rather quiet disposition and a fair workman, and owing to his reserved nature very little is known about his family connection, although he has resided here about twelve years. He leaves a wife and several children. The oldest boy is now in the reform school, and the father had recently circulated a petition to secure his release, that he might send him to school.

Drank Carbohc Acid.

Sometime during yesterday afternoon, Cecil, three-year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Armstrong, one mile west and one and one-half miles north of town, gained admission to a front room of the house, while his mother was busy in the kitchen, and managed to get hold of a bottle containing carbohc acid. He drank some of the contents, probably between three and four drachms, when she mother heard his cries, but found she was too late to prevent the acid burning him severely about the mouth and chin. Dr. G. M. Livingston was at once summoned and did all possible to save his life, but he passed away shortly before noon yesterday. The parents have the sympathy of everyone in their especially sad affliction. The funeral will be held at half past one tomorrow.

Died in Montana.

Hon. J. C. Laing has received word that his sister, Mrs. Amos Predmore, departed this life at Marston, Flathead County, Montana, on Monday, the 8th inst. She was at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Warren Weydemeyer, whom she accompanied to the west last spring. Deceased was only 31 about ten days and would have been seventy-three years old next month. She has spent most of her life since 1857 in Cass City and in the adjacent township of Elmwood, so that she is well known to the majority of our readers. She was a faithful attendant of the Methodist Church as far as her strength would allow.

Comet or Meteor?

Those who were astir about five o'clock on Monday morning, witnessed a most unusual phenomenon, being a streak of fire moving from south to north, wedge-shaped and of a bluish color. Those who saw it state that it resembled a comet. It pursued a zig-zag course like that of a sky rocket and moved with great rapidity. It left a streak of light in the sky for about fifteen minutes after passing. It was seen at Port Huron, Pontiac and other points south of here, and some express the opinion that, passing northward, it fell either in Lake Huron or Saginaw Bay.

B. R. Noble, the well-known banker of Yale, who also has interests in other towns of the Thumb, succumbed to typhoid fever at a Detroit hospital on Wednesday of last week. He leaves a widow, a son and a daughter.

THE FAIR.

At Cass City, Sept. 30, Oct. 1, 2 and 3, Promises Well.

We are pleased to be able to announce to our many readers that the Cass City Fair for this year promises well, notwithstanding the rather discouraging outlook for the farmers in some parts of the district. The of-floors are smiling and cheerful, which goes to show that they have reason to expect great things. They have been successful in securing pleasing attractions, which they realize are necessary for the entertainment of the people. The most entertainment for the least money and the greatest variety, has been the sequel to the success of our fair.

Since Cincinnati, the grand old Roman consul, dictator and warrior, abandoned office, honors and emoluments to cultivate his farm with his own hands, there has been conferred upon agriculture a certain kind and degree of dignity that attaches to no other calling, employment or profession whatever. Indeed, Cincinnati conferred upon the plow more honor than Cyrus, Alexander, Caesar or Napoleon, or any other great captain, ever bestowed upon the sword. Since the time when it was said, "the farmer feedeth all," the plow, like the bow upon the brow of the cloud, has symbolized "seed time and harvest," and the farm has been a land of promise, and the harvest home song has voiced a sweeter and a more inspiring melody than when the "sons of God and the morning stars" sang together their adoring hymn of Nature. Riley's rural poem has made even the barnyard and the autumn cornfield things of beauty and a joy forever, by giving us that farm picture painted to life:

"When the frost is on the pumpkin and the feller's in the shock,
And you hear the ruck and gobble of the strutting turkey cock,
And the clucking of the guineys, and the clucking of the hens,
And the rooster's halloo as he tips on the fence,
O feller! then's the time a feller is a feller of his best,
With the right sun to greet him from a night of peaceful rest,
And he leaves the house bareheaded and goes out
to feed the stock,
When the frost is on the pumpkin and the feller's in the shock."

Poetry has an abiding home amid the scenic beauties and attractions of the farms, their verdant and flowery fields, their rocks and rills, their brooks and vales and vine-embowered homes. It has long since become proverbial philosophy that the farm, the country, and agricultural pursuits are more favorable for virtue, chastity, integrity and all the ennobling virtues which are attributed to our Christian civilization, than the congested centres of our population, can boast with all the advantages which schools, churches and art centers, to say nothing of the restraining power of police courts, jails, flower missions and charity institutions. In the country a moral influence prevails at all seasons of the year, and so it has come about through wise and careful forethought that at this season of the year when "a feller's at his best," an opportunity has been provided for the mingling of our city aunts and country cousins—a time when they may take a brief respite from their arduous toil and exchange thoughts that prove helpful to all in after life. Such an opportunity is afforded at the Cass City Fair, beginning Sept. 30th and continuing until the evening of Oct. 3rd, when our townspeople undertake to entertain all who will entrust themselves to their hospitality.

SPECIAL ATTRACTIONS.

It appears to become more difficult each year to secure suitable attractions, but our secretary has succeeded in landing several that are guaranteed to be strictly No. 1. A company of wire walkers and sliders and balloons will give wonderful exhibitions in the afternoons. The Chicago Quartette of colored gentlemen has been secured to play and sing the old favorite melodies. The horse races promise to be first-class, and will be varied by automobile racing. A base ball match has been arranged between teams from Caro and Bad Axe, which teams always play good ball. A foot ball contest is also being planned between good teams. The Cass City Band has prepared an abundance of good music for the occasion, and other features will yet be added to make a continuous entertainment for the people.

The secretary, H. L. McDermott, will have an office opened next Monday morning, at the Enterprise office, third door west of the postoffice, where entries may be made and other business transacted.

SUPPLEMENT.

STATE FAIR.

At Pontiac September 22nd to 26th.

The present outlook for a large fair is most gratifying to the management. The success of last year, surprised everyone and gave the fair an impetus which will be felt in the improvements which will be added this year. Several new features will be introduced and special attractions added.

There will be no lack of transportation on steam railroads this year. Trains will run every hour from Brush street depot, Detroit, and from country points enough trains will be run to cart all passengers direct to the grounds.

Arrangements have been made with the state fish commission to make a magnificent display, and one wing of the main building has been set aside entirely for that exhibit. More space is being sold for the exhibition of agriculture and kindred displays than ever before. The state highway commission will make specimen stone roads during the state fair week, giving everyone interested an opportunity to see how good the roads in Michigan can be made. The Agricultural College will make a large exhibition. A fancy military drill company from Jackson will be an unusually interesting feature and one never before undertaken.

Doctors Could not help her.

"I had kidney trouble for years," writes Mrs. Raymond Conner of Shelton, Wash., "and the doctors could not help me. I tried Foley's Kidney Cure and the very first dose gave me relief and I am now cured. I cannot say too much for Foley's Kidney Cure." T. H. Fritz, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

A Sad Disappointment

Ineffective liver medicine is a disappointment, but you don't want to purge, strain and break the glands of the stomach and bowels. DeWitt's Little Early Risers never disappoint. They cleanse the system of all poison and putrid matter and do it so gently that one enjoys the pleasant effects. They are a tonic to the liver. Cure biliousness, torpid liver and prevent fever. A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

Communication.

EDITOR ENTERPRISE—To my communication in your issue of Sept. 5th, the Sebawaing Review comments as follows:—"John McCracken, of Deford, doesn't like it a bit because the new Hotel Montague at Caro will sell liquor. It's too bad, John, old boy, but the state says the business is legitimate. Of course you don't have to drink it if you don't want to."

No, Editor Trumble, we don't have to drink it, if we don't want to, and if we did drink it perhaps we would be like you, poor man, unable to see the evil arising therefrom. We don't have to drink it, but, in common with others, are forced to suffer because unfortunate fellow men will drink it. The murder case just closed in Tuscola county, costing hundreds of dollars, the result of a bottle of whiskey, is an example. Our state institutions for the feeble minded that cost such enormous sums annually, where a large percentage of the inmates is due to drink directly or indirectly, is where we are all made to suffer. In a thousand ways we are made to suffer. Perhaps it is well to suggest that the people of Sebawaing suffer for want of sound reasoning and sparkle of wit through their paper whose engineer was built by nature keen, but now hampered with a beer soaked brain.

Editor Trumble, you say the business is legitimate. Now that shows your intellect is failing. Evil minded men have ever caused the enactment of bad laws so they might hide behind them. Call to mind, if you will, when we had a national law that made it impossible for judges to be just, for jurors to be humane. It made man the catcher of his fellow man, who had done no wrong, but was born with a dark skin and was fleeing for his God-given liberty. Every publication in the land is a moulder of public opinion and how can you expect to make the world better by the thoughts you express in the Review?

If you are dishonest the public by withdrawal of patronage should remove you and fill the editorial chair with a nobler mind. If your intellectual powers are enfeebled so you cannot see the right you are indeed an object of pity. But in any case, Mr. Trumble, the sweet bird of hope sings for us all, teaching the great lesson that reformation is ever within our reach. JOHN McCracken, Deford, Mich.

Take Care of the Stomach

The man or woman whose digestion is perfect and whose stomach performs its every function is never sick. Kodol cleanses, purifies and sweetens the stomach and cures positively and permanently all stomach troubles, indigestion and dyspepsia. It is the wonderful reconstructive tonic that is making so many sick people well and weak people strong by conveying to their bodies all of the nourishment in the food they eat. Rev. J. H. Holladay, Holladay, Miss., writes: "Kodol has cured me. I consider it the best remedy I ever used for dyspepsia and stomach troubles. I was given up by physicians. Kodol saved my life." Take it after meals. A. Bond, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

For a bad taste in the mouth take Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. For sale at Bond's Drug Store, Cass City; F. A. Francis, Kingston.

The amount of freight delivered at Crosswell is something enormous when compared with the business done at other stations along the line of the Pere Marquette. Fourteen million pounds was the amount shipped in during the month of August last.—Crosswell Journal.

Fortune Favors a Texan.

"Having distressing pains in head, back and stomach, and being without appetite, I began to use Dr. King's New Life Pills," writes W. P. Whitehead, of Kennedale, Tex., "and soon felt like a new man." One Minute Cough Cure
For Coughs, Colds and Croup.

RESCUED FROM BLINDNESS BY DR. ONEAL

E. H. Reynolds, of Chicago, Restored to Sight by Dr. Oren Oneal, without the Knife, by THE ONEAL DISSOLVENT METHOD. Similar Cases in This Vicinity.

A delightful picture is painted in the glowing tribute paid Dr. Oren Oneal, Chicago's gifted oculist, by Mr. E. H. Reynolds, 422 42d place, Chicago, who was cured of cataracts without the knife. It is another evidence of the wonderful efficacy of The Oneal Dissolvent Treatment. The strongest recommendation Dr. Oneal's Dissolvent Method can have is the fact that it positively never injures the eye.

Mr Reynolds Saved From Blindness.

Mr. Reynolds had suffered for a number of years with cataracts of both eyes. For nearly two years he had been unable to see out of his left eye. He says: "I wish everyone who is afflicted with eye trouble might know of the marvelous cure Dr. Oneal has effected for me. He has restored me to sight after years of mental torture in the belief that there was no hope for me, but that I must live out my days in total blindness. Cataracts had been forming for years. I visited oculists after oculists with no result other than the information that I MUST WAIT TO GO BLIND, and then the eyes could be operated on. Dr. Oneal, when I finally heard of him and had him examine my eyes, didn't say anything like that. HE TOLD ME HE COULD CURE ME. That was five months ago. I have been under his care since, and to-day I can see to read—in fact, my eyes will soon be well. It's wonderful. Dr. Oneal may send any one to me and I will be delighted to tell them how he saved my eyes." E. H. REYNOLDS.

Many thousands of similar cures are indebted to The Oneal Dissolvent Method. Dr. Oneal is proud that he has never injured an eye, nor has he failed in a cure when any sight remained and his treatment was given a fair trial. This is no more wonderful than the case of Andrew Tillman of Milwaukee, the history of whose cure is still fresh in the minds of Milwaukee people. Here is a letter written by Mr. Tillman, which verifies the statements made by Dr. Oneal: Clemens Tillman, publisher of the Labor Exchange Advertiser of Chicago, and president of the Illinois Producers' Association, says: "Dr. Oneal straightened the eyes of my nephew, Andrew Tillman of Milwaukee, in two minutes, without the use of knife, chloroform or bandage."

CROSS-EYES STRAIGHTENED—A new method—without the knife or pain. Over 5,000 cases successfully treated. Dr. Oneal will be glad to advise anyone who will call or write, free of charge, and he will also send his new valuable book on Eye Diseases, and many testimonials free. Address

Beware of the Knife

No profession has advanced more rapidly of late than surgery, but it should not be used except where absolutely necessary. In cases of piles for example, it is seldom needed. OLD TIME FAVORITES

THE WAVING OF THE CORN.

BY SIDNEY LANIER.

Ploughman, whose gnarly hand yet kindly wheeled
Thy plough to ring this solitary tree
With clover, whose round plat, reserved a field,
In cool green radius twice my length may be—
Scanting the corn thy furrows else might yield,
To pleasure August, bees, fair thoughts, and me,
That come here off together—day by day
Stretched prone in summer's mortal ecstasy,
Do stir with thanks to thee, as stirs this morn
With waving of the corn.

Unseen, the farmer's boy from round the hill
Whistles a snatch that seeks his soul unsought,
And fills some time with tune, howbeit shrill;
The cricket tells straight on his simple thought—
Nay, 'tis the cricket's way of being still;
The peddler bee drones in, and gossips naught;
Far down the wood, a one-desiring dove
Times me the beating of the heart of love;
And these be all the sounds that mix, each morn,
With waving of the corn.

From here to where the louder passions dwell,
Green leagues of hilly separation roll;
Trade ends where your far clover ridges swell,
Ye terrible towns, ne'er claim the trembling soul
That, craftless all to buy or hoard or sell,
From out your deadly complex quarrel stole
To company with large amiable trees,
Suck honey summer with unjealous bees,
And take time's strokes as softly as this morn
Takes waving of the corn.

The Little Fiddler.

By Nora Hopper.

"FATE'S a fiddler." The little fiddler—such a quick unchildlike glance around the packed concert room, drew a long unchildlike sigh, and began to play. First, a gay ripple of music—light and heedless and youthful—then a phrase or so, subdued and soft and piteous as the "moan of doves in immemorial elms," followed by the liquid lament of a nightingale. A scurry of soft notes like summer rain dropped from the strings into silence, and the end came with a repetition of the child's laugh.

"Gypsy, every note of it," an eminent scientist said to his daughter, as she leaned back in her stall with tears in her soft brown eyes. "Gypsy music, my dear Madge, and played, one would swear, by a gypsy, but for his face. And his name, too, is pure Saxon—Anglo-Saxon at that."

"It is, papa?" his daughter Madge said, with a swift glance at the little fiddler, now rendering a wild bizarre movement, half dance, half march.

"It's an odd name, too; Godfrith Ak. I don't think I like it, and I don't think I like his face, either; it's so sallow and plain."

"Look at his eyes, my dear."

"So I have, and I don't want to do it again, papa; they give me the creeps," Madge whispered back. "But he's a wonderful player."

"Aye, he is that; I wonder where he comes from? I am interested in his name; pure Anglo-Saxon, Madge; think of it."

"Perhaps he's a ghost or something of that sort," commented Madge, flippantly. "Anglicize his name a little, please, papa; it's too Saxon for me."

"Godfrey Oak; that is the modern English of it, my dear; and there is no verb 'Anglo,' said the professor, dryly, as the violin piece ended, and a little rustle went through the crowded room. "Yes, that is the last. Come, Madge, my dear—Why, Hoffmann, I never expected to see you here. And how is your wife, my dear fellow?"

"They were out in the vestibule now, and Madge Dormer, paler than her wont, offered her hand with a smile to the spectacled young German her father had taken by the arm.

"How is Mrs. Hoffmann? Better, I hope. And your boy?"

"Clara is as well as she ever will be, Miss Dormer," Ernest Hoffmann said, not too cordially. "She will never walk again, the doctor says, but she is stronger and patient—she is always that, you know."

"I do know," Madge said, with a catch in her breath. "I knew Clara before you did, Mr. Hoffmann, and I can bear witness to her sweetness."

"You did. I beg your pardon, Miss Dormer," Ernest Hoffmann flushed a little.

The professor, mildly uneasy, put in a half apologetic remark, after the blundering masculine fashion. "Madge is very fond of your wife, Hoffmann; always was, through all."

"I appreciate Miss Dormer's devotion," Ernest Hoffmann said, with a stiff bow. Madge held her head erect and looked at him with an angry light in her eyes.

"I appreciate Mr. Hoffmann's magnanimity," she said, icily. "Papa, we shall be late if we don't hurry. Good-by, Mr. Hoffmann; my kind love to Clara. O, by the way, how is Ulric?"

"Ulric is ill," Ernest Hoffmann said, shortly. "Mr. Dormer, a moment. Can you tell me where Godfrith Ak is staying?"

"Senior Ludovico is at the Alexandra Hotel and Ak is with him, of course," the professor said, as he turned away, hurried by the danger signals flying in his daughter's face.

"How she hates me!" Ernest Hoffmann sighed, as he went through the park in the March wind and sunshine. "I suppose she thinks a clerk had no right to marry her cousin. Ah! Clara does not think so—yet. How that had played—no wonder, Ulric dreams of him. And I wonder the will come."

The wonder remained when he sat in the luxurious sitting room at the Alexandra, facing the impresario, a big, handsome Italian, with an enormous beard.

"Yes, his playing is a marvel," Signor Ludovico said, placidly scanning Hoff-

The impresario checked and moderated his tone a little.

"You have the whip hand of me now, Godfrith, but wait—but wait till I have you under my hand again. Corpo di cane! I will make you pay for this!"

"Of course you will, maestro," Godfrith said, coolly, "and you may, but to-day I will be master of my own hands. So I will come, Mr. Hoffmann, if you will wait two seconds."

He left the room and returned instantly with a plaid thrown over his narrow, stooping shoulders and his violin case under his arm.

"Come," he went on, with an impish laugh and a glance at the impresario, scowling in his easy chair; "the maestro will recover when we are gone. Do you live here, Mr. Hoffmann?" as they emerged into the sunlit street.

"Quite close," Ernest Hoffmann said, curtly, as they left the high road and turned down narrow Savage street. Godfrith Ak gave a glance at the dreary, demure houses right and left, and laughed quietly to himself.

"Eh! in tatters for somebody, I suppose. Do you live here, Mr. Hoffmann?" as Ernest pushed open the door of No. 330. "Have you any other children?"

"No," Ernest Hoffmann said, as he preceded the little fiddler up the creaking stairs; "only this one—and his mother is a cripple. This way, Clara, he is here." Dark blue eyes met the dark gray, in a long, inquiring glance; then a thin hand, soft and white and cold, went out to clasp the little fiddler's thin, hot fingers and a soft voice said:

"Oh, it is good of you to come—so good! Ernest told you how ill our boy was and how he longed to hear you play? And your playing is a marvel. How do you? Why—" She withdrew her hand with a little cry.

"You are not a child at all, and I thought—"

"No, I am not a child," the little fiddler said, looking at her puzzled face with clear, candid eyes. "I am seventeen. Yes (with a shrug) I am a child in size. I know—I stopped growing when I was nine."

"Are you a gypsy? Forgive me," Clara said, with a pretty blush, "but it has been said so—and I wondered if it was true."

"I am of gypsy blood on one side, madame," Godfrith Ak answered—"the mother's."

"I am afraid," Clara said, as he opened the violin case and took the instrument out, handling it lovingly. "You ought not to have come out in this east wind. You have been ill, surely?"

"No," Godfrith said, quietly. "I am never stronger, madame. But I am never ill, either. Shall I begin to play now, madame? Where is your boy?"

"In the next room—through that open door, if you will be so kind. Ernest," as her husband made as if he would follow the little fiddler to his boy's bedside, "let them be alone together, dear. Our guest will like it better, I know. Madge would say I am absurdly fanciful, dear, as he came to her side with a surprised face. "But I feel as if you had brought here a good fairy who will cure our Ulric, and—what is that he is playing?"

"A cradle song, madame," Godfrith answered for himself, through the open doorway. "It is a Norwegian lullaby. The lullaby crooned softly into silence, and then Clara from her couch saw the little fiddler bend swiftly over the bed and kiss her boy's flushed, delighted face with a murmured "So, this is better than the Albert Hall."

Then he took up his bow again and drew it over the strings in a swift, dainty dance measure, all light, airy passages, through which Clara could almost hear the movement of dancing feet. She listened for a few minutes with a half smile on her lips; then her eyes, puzzled and half afraid, went wistfully to meet the little fiddler's, and came back to her husband's face with an unsatisfied fear in their blue depths. "Ernest, do I know that song? It seems so—and I wish almost—I wish he would not play it—"

"Madame, I am half way through it. I must go on to the bitter end now," the little fiddler called to her, with a tremble of laughter in his voice. "I shall soon have done."

"I don't like it," Clara murmured, distressfully. "I seem to know it, and—"

She lay listening in silence for some minutes, then the fear in her eyes kindled into a flame, and she caught at her husband's hand with the look of a terrified child.

"Ernest, I remember; it is the 'Dance of Death,' that the Bohemian gypsies play. Stop him—"

"My dear Clara—" Her terror made even unimaginative Ernest Hoffmann turn pale, and he turned yet paler when the music stopped in the middle of an airy dance movement.

"I will go to play for your son," Godfrith said quietly, "or else I will not play in the hall at all."

"But you shall play," stormed the impresario, "or I will make you suffer for it, Godfrith Ak. I will not be cheated! I—"

"You cannot make me play, Signor Ludovico!" Godfrith said, still quietly, but with a flush on his sallow cheek. "I will do as I please now. Up to this I have done as you pleased, maestro mio."

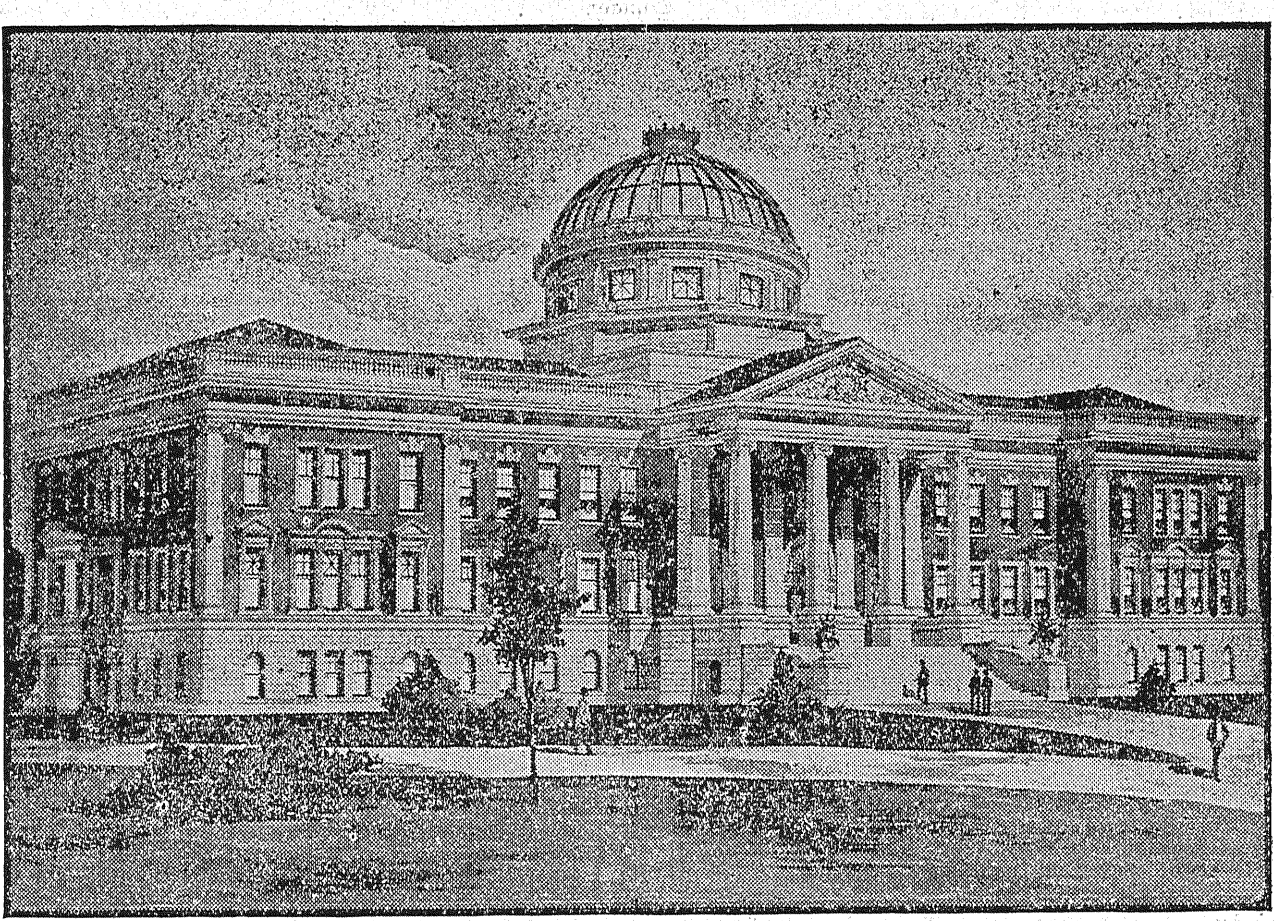

"You are an ungrateful little viper!" the impresario said, hoarsely, "and I will pay you for it, never fear, Godfrith Ak! And as for you, sir—"

"Take care how you bully Mr. Hoffmann, maestro," Godfrith Ak said, composedly. "There are policemen outside."

"If there were not—"

"If there were not you would tie me into a chair and starve me into submission, as you did when we were in St. Petersburg. Maestro, if you speak so loud you will be too hoarse to sing. Y'avait un roi de Thessalie to-night."

UNIVERSITY OF OKLAHOMA.

The University of Oklahoma, located at Norman, Okla., a growing town of 3,500 inhabitants, the county seat of Cleveland county, eighteen miles south of Oklahoma City, is founded upon the authority of an act of the legislature of the Territory of Oklahoma, entitled, "An Act to Locate and Establish the University of Oklahoma." The act provided that when ten thousand dollars and forty acres of land should be donated to the territory by the city of Norman, the institution should be located at that place. These requirements were met in 1892 and the university was established in that year.

The school is open to students of both sexes. It now comprises a college of arts, a school of music, a school of pharmacy, a preparatory school, a school of medicine, and a school of engineering. The governing board, the board of regents is appointed by the governor of the Territory and the members are chosen from the ranks of practical business men. At present the board is composed of the following members: Gov. T. B. Ferguson, Guthrie, Okla., ex-officio; Hon. G. W. Sutton, M. D., Cleveland, Okla.; Hon. L. E. Wood, Shawnee, Okla.; J. L. Larsh, Esq., Norman, Okla.; J. L. Wilkins, Esq., Oklahoma City, Okla.; Harry Gilstrap, Esq., Chandler, Okla.

The university campus comprises sixty acres, twenty of which have recently been donated by the citizens of Norman. The campus and approaching boulevards have been set out in trees which have already reached a size sufficient for considerable shade. In addition there is a nursery of 15,000 young trees, for the most part elm, ash, and locust.

The building, which has been in use since it was completed in 1893, is now remodeled for use as a science hall and a new main hall is under construction. The old building, built of white limestone and red pressed brick, contains twenty-five recitation rooms and a large chapel.

By an act of the legislature approved March 8, 1901, the university was granted the income for two years from a tax of seven-tenths of a mill on the dollar on all taxable property of the Territory, the amount to be spent for building, however, not to exceed $90,000. The building thus provided for is the new main hall which will be completed by Dec. 21, 1902; it is to be of buff pressed brick with terra cotta trimmings and white limestone basement.

In accordance with the bill above referred to plans have been drawn and contract let for a central lighting and heating plant to cost $15,000. A third building now being planned is a gymnasium at an estimated cost of $10,000.

The university is supported by a general tax of one-half mill upon each dollar of valuation on the assessment roll of the Territory. In addition to this, Section 13 in each township in what is known as the Cherokee Outlet was reserved from settlement, for university, normal school and agricultural school purposes. The lands so reserved have been leased for the benefit of the institutions named. The additional lands recently opened for settlement increase the income of the university so that it receives annually for its support something between $40,000 and $50,000.

Twenty-five instructors are now employed and additions to the faculty are made each year as the demand for additional courses makes it necessary. The enrollment last year was four hundred, a large percentage of which was of college rank. The university is a member of the Northwestern Association of State Universities and its courses rank with those in any of the state institutions of the Northwest.

The institution is patronized by the people who come to Oklahoma and the Indian Territory from many of the eastern and southern states, who are enthusiastic and loyal in their support of the Territorial school. Its legitimate domain is Oklahoma and the Indian Territory and the summer just passed has shown it to be growing in favor with people from both sections of the country. Its privileges are free to both peoples, and the young men and women of both the Indian Territory and Oklahoma are finding it a good place in which to do educational work.

FORGOT HE HELD A POLICY.

Burned-Out Merchant Overlooked a Risk of Four Thousand Dollars.

A Boston clothing house was destroyed by fire recently and in connection with the adjustment of the losses the representative of one of the insurance companies interested discovered that the insured had a policy for $4,000 which had been overlooked. Upon making representations to the firm the proprietor denied that he had any such policy, and it was only on the production of the books of the Queen, showing when the premium had been paid, that he was convinced that he was entitled to the sum involved. Even then he declared that the insurance concern had made a mistake, but if it insisted that he was entitled to it he would consent to take the money. The occurrence was so exceptional that special interest has been taken in the case, with the result that the firm's credit will probably be materially strengthened among insurance men.

FINED FOR CRUELTY TO FISH.

English Naturalist Punished for Lack of Care.

A few weeks ago an officer of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in England noticed as he was passing by a naturalist's house that some dead goldfish were floating in a globe which stood in one of the windows. Making inquiries, he discovered that the water in the globe had not been changed for several days.

Knowing that this was sufficient to cause death among the fish, he made a formal charge of cruelty against the naturalist. When the case was called in court he produced as a witness a professor of a museum of natural history, who testified that goldfish could not live under such conditions and that before dying they would suffer much agony. The judge was evidently impressed by this testimony, for he promptly fined the naturalist $10.

Could Not Forget Politics.

In dying suddenly after a stroke of vertigo Jacob Kuntzman, a district leader of the New York democracy, gave a strange example of the ruling passion strong in death. "Kuntzman was returning home after having bailed out a constituent accused of some petty offense when he was stricken. It seems that he had arranged a picnic for his political followers to take place Monday and the band hired for the occasion determined to give the leader a serenade. As the unconscious form of the dying politician was borne toward the house in an ambulance the band, believing him to be in the house, played a lively air at the doorstep. Kuntzman regained consciousness inside the house and asked that "the boys" be admitted to a last audience. "I am dying," he said as they gathered about him, "but before I go I want to say to you that I thank you for the loyalty you have shown me. You can win without me, but I'd like to be in at the finish." In a few more hours he was dead.

Laying Out Japanese Garden.

William Gould Brokaw, a New York society man, is spending $25,000 to put a small Japanese garden in his estate near Great Neck. Under a French gardener he is employing seventy skilled men on the plot, which is to be only 200 feet square. It will contain all of the rare trees, shrubs and flowers native to Japan, and the landscape design will be after the Japanese models. There will be little but expensive summer houses, tea pagodas and shelters. The walks and lanes will be winding, but all in an exact system. The plans have not all been made public, but Mr. Brokaw expects to have the Japanese flower garden completed in the early fall.

It Makes Them Sneeze.

Among the many curious products south Africa includes the "sneeze-wood" tree, which takes its name from the fact that one cannot cut it with a saw without sneezing, as the fine dust has exactly the effect of snuff. Even in planing the wood it will sometimes cause sneezing. No insect, worm or barnacle will touch it; it is very bitter to taste, and when placed in water it will sink. The color is light brown and the grain very close and hard. For dock work, piers or jetties it is a useful timber, lasting a long while under water.

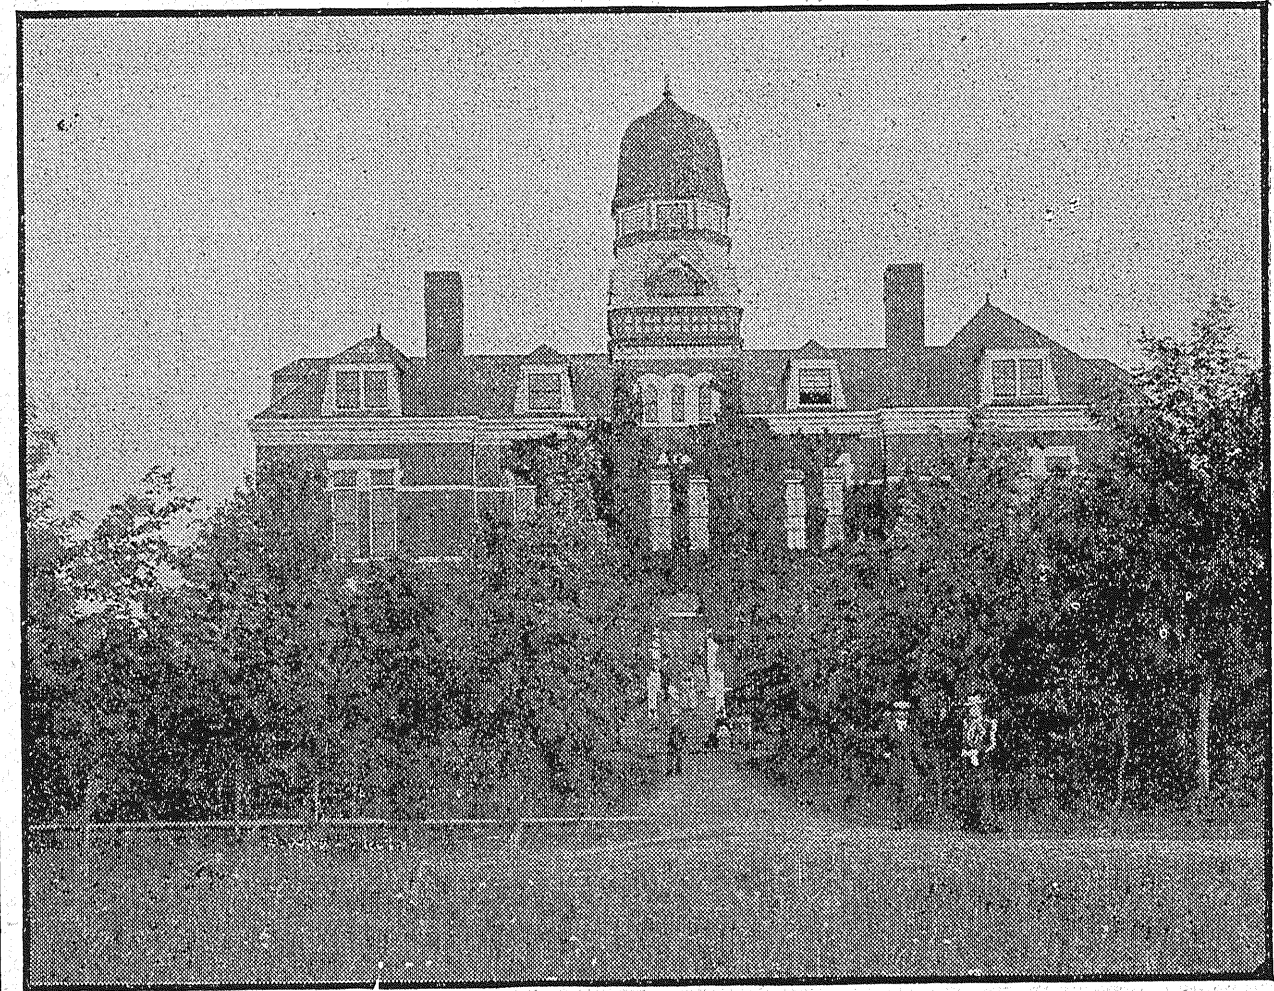

Talent and Genius.

"Yes, sir," said Uncle Allen Sparks, "there's a difference between talent and genius. I was at a salvation Army meeting on a street corner once, where the leader, a bright fellow, made a most excellent speech and then called for contributions to help the cause along. He got just 37 cents. Then one of the women started a hymn. She managed to sing it to the tune of Dixie, and I give you my word there was one gray-headed old colonel in the crowd that fought his way forward and dropped a $5 bill in her tambourine. That was genius."

New Style of Wedding Suit.

The Harper Sentinel has an account of a double wedding which took place in Harper the other day. The brides were gowned alike in dove colored silk. "The grooms," says the Sentinel, "were dressed in dark blue broadcloth, sack coat, low cut vest, sailor pants, and patent leather shoes." Now, in the name of the great Jehovah and the Continental congress, what do you suppose those prairie boys were thinking of when they donned those sailor pants?—Kansas City Journal.

Its Possessor Vainly Endeavors to Get Rid of It.

One of the best known public men in New Zealand, a wealthy resident of Hokiangi, North Island, recently traveled all the way to St. Louis, U. S. A., in a fruitless endeavor to have an idol cremated which had cast an evil spell over him.

The heathen idol had come to him
