Looks Like Real Business.

So Says the Pt. Huron Times.

We quote from the Nov. 7th issue of the Times as follows:— W. C. Penoyer and F. B. Chesbrough of Bay City and E. Wright, of Alma, who recently organized a company to build a railroad from Bay City to Port Port Huron looking over the route and conferring with citizens. The new company as organized has the following officers:

President-W. C. Penoyer, of Bay Vice President-Benjamin Boutelle,

of Bay City. Treasurer-F. B. Chesbrough, of Bay

Secretary--Wm. W. Wilson, of Bay City.

The directors consist of the four Wednesday as usual. Ora McKim gentlemen named above and N. Bradley, Homer E. Buck and C. L. Collins, tled, "Silvery Thistle," by E. Ketterer. of Bay City, C. M. Green, of Port Hur-Ed. Pinney gave us a very interesting on, and Gil R. Lovejoy. of Lenox.

President Penoyer says that 20 miles of the proposed road from Port Huron to Lexington is now graded and ready for track laying, that the right of way from Lexington to Bay City is guaranteed free and that a bonus of $1,000 per mile has been guaranteed by cities and I just received your kind letter and was glad to hear from you. You ask villages along the line. Favorable f my rabbits ever got out of the yard traffic arrangements have been secured glad when it snows so I can get my sled out and play. I like to go to school. I can't think of much to write port, Lexington, Croswell, and there crossing the Pere Marquette railway, giving connection with that railroad, then nine miles to Peck, five miles to Watertown postoffice, six miles to Sanilac Centre, the county seat of Sanilac county, from which point it runs west five miles to Elmer, then northwest through Snover, Shabbona, and Tindale and west through Cass City, Colwood, Akron, Quanicassee City to Bay City.

The promoters say that the road covers a distance of 105 miles and serves a population of 100,000 people Along the line of the road are two places where water power will be developed, one at a point where the road crosses Black River and the other at Cass River near Shabbona. The road will cut through the undeveloped coal for at least 30 miles. The sugar beet and territory through which the road will pass and it is the best sugar beet land in Michigan.

The statement is made that a marl deposit of 300 acres is located near Cass City, at which place a cement factory will be built.

The promoters claim that within the territory five miles each side of the road there are living not less than 9,000 farmers who will furnish 50,000 carloads of freight annually.

The estimated cost of the road is given at $1,500,000, and the estimated earnings as follows:

Passenger traffic.....$200,000 Special excursions...... 15,000 Out going freight...... 511,870 Incoming freight...... 100,000 Mail and express...... 30,000

Total gross earnings.....$856,770 It is also estimated that operating good buildings, water, orchard, and all expenses of 60 per cent will amount to improved but about ten acres. $503,822, leaving a net income of $342,-

The road will be known as the Port Huron, Sanilac and Bay City railroad. Messrs. Penoyer and Chesbrough say Messrs. Penoyer and Chesbrough say there is no doubt but that the road will be begun during the coming year.

Saginaw, with a population of 42,345, s only 15 miles from Bay City, Sarnia, Ont., is less than a mile from Port Huron and has a population of 8,000 making a total population of 158,000 within easyreach of the road.

WANTS DAMAGES.

Pere Marquette Sued For $75,000

W. P. Dunn, of the firm of Dunn & Hunter, of Marlette, last week brought suit against the Pere Marquette Railway Company for $75,000 damages for injuries which he received in the col-Huron, spent a portion of last week in lision which occured between two passenger trains on the curve just below Mayville on the 4th of last May. Geo. F. Monanhan, of Detroit, is Mr. Dunn's attorney. Mr. Dunn was a passenger on the train going west on the day of the wreck, and was among those who were most severely injured. He has been under the care of a physician ever since, and it is said there is no hopes of his getting any better. His nervous system seems to have been shattered and he cannot control any of the muscles of his body. He has also lost the use of both legs and one arm. Mr Dunn is said to have been a young man with excellent health and splendid physique at the time of the accident and had just embarked in business at Marlette.

This is the first suit growing out of the wreck, all the other persons injured making a satisfactory settlement with the railroad company.

Hilled Instantly.

Mrs. Bridget Kerwin, aged about sixty years, met instant death last Monday afternoon, while attempting to cross the Grand Trunk tracks at Hanley street in this village. The unfortunate woman was on her way to the business part of the village for the purpose of purchasing some oil-she carried an empty can in her hand. The westbound fiver on the Grand Trunk road struck the woman just as she was clearing the track and threw her about forty feet. Her skull was broken, legs broken and body badly battered. This train does not stop at Imlay City and was passing through the village at the accustomed rate of speed. The engineer brought his train to a standstill in precisely one trainlength. Nothing could be done by the train crew as death was instantaneous -Imlay City Times.

It has been estimated by an experi in the employ of the Government that agricultural machinery reduces the number of men employed to do a given amount to one-third, while manufacturing machinery reduces the number to one-fiftieth.

The Figaro of Paris is congratulating itself on the prediction it made two years ago that one could toon communicate with passengers on Atlantic steamers without leaving the boulcvards. Recently the Compagnie Gen-Transatlantique distributed booklets giving the directions necessary for utilizing this mode of correspondence.

Tales of hazing and of unconscionable pranks in various colleges are conspicuously displayed in the daily newspapers. The old Adam appears to be almost irrepressible among the $10. young fellows of the present time, as among their ancestors, muses the New York Tribune. They will persist in sowing their wild oats, although the reaping of the harvest may cause them wailings and gnashing of teeth.

George Brandes, a Danish critic, estimates that $000 to 10,000 novels on an average are published every year the world over. The Japanese print over 450, India about 200, Egypt a dozen and Syria about the same number. Italy and Spain each publish more than 500 novels annually, France perhaps 600, with Scandanavia close behind. Russia prints about 1000. England and Germany print more than any other country.

Germany thought she had a claim against Venezuela of about a million and a quarter in dollars, but, put under the examining glass of the mixed tribunal at The Hague, it shrank down to $380,095. In the opinion of the New York Tribune, gunboat collection of this sort of accounts is no doubt preferable to submitting them to a qualified and unbiassed international court for adjustment; but the latter is the best way, and will be found in Michigan. most advantageous for everybody in Many important railroad lines in the West are so congested with freight that they need large additions to their rolling stock in order to handle properly the business which is thrust upon them. The demands for transportation are so overwhelming in various States that blockades on a large scale are frequent. The tides of passenger travel are also at the flood, and rapidly rising higher. Doubters of the prosperity outlook for the people of the Union have no sufficient reason for gloomy forebodings.

A Southern editor says this in praise of the apple: "The apple is the most democratic of all fruits. The pome granate is priestly; the grape is royal; the orange is luxurious; the peach and pear are plutocratic, but the apple belongs to the populace. It is symbolic 17,000 people in Wextord county. of the country store and the corner grocery. It breathes the free spirit of the American township and village. It has a flavor of old New England and yet a pungency as of the South and Middle West. It is mild, palatable, nourishing and promotive of good fellowship and long life."

How differently things are viewed in different nations appears in a startling story that comes from Southern Hungary. The seven members of the Municipal Council of a village there were discovered in the appropriation of the proceeds of sales of municipal property. Rather than stand trial, the story goes, all seven of them committed suicide. We confess to incredulity, says the Pittsburg Dispatch, In the first place, that sensitive honor which would drive seven men to suiside rather than stand exposure of Chicago. their thefts would surely have been keen enough to have arrested one or two or them before participation in hunting. the thefts. But beyond that, men who have advanced to the stage of practical politics indicated in the story ought to have some inklings of the further developments of the science, illustrated frequently in our own happy land. Certainly, a moderate knowledge of the scientific procedure in such cases should have enabled the seven of Hungary to proceed on the modern plan. and either depart for parts unknown or otherwise stave off proceedings for

OVERTHROW OF THE COLOMBIAN GOVERNMENT SEEMS PROBABLE

Revolution in Colombia may be the result of the secession of Panama. The first message from Bogota since the revolt of the isthmian states came to the state department Nov. 11 from

United States Minister Beaupre under date of Nov. 9. The news of the secession of Panama apparently was received at Bogota on Nov. 8, six days after the event. The news, instead of inciting the people to anger against the United States,

Later in the day a mass meeting demounced the president and called for a change of government. Hundreds gathered at the palace, and the orator, a prominent national general, called for the resignation of the president. The gathering again was dispersed by the troops, several people being wounded. There were no fatalities. The city has been placed under martial law and well guarded by soldiers.

The legation of the United States was placed under the protection of the government, but up to the time Minister Beaupre sent his message there had been no indications of hostile demonstrations.

Minister Beaupre makes no referthe present time arranging to send an army to the isthmus. On the other hand, Colombia seems to be trying to win back the isthmian states by fair promises and moral suasion. Not only has Gen. Reyes been sent to Panama as a peace commissioner, but, as is learned from dispatches received from Panama, many influential men at Bogota, including both liberals and conservatives, are cabling appeals to prominent men and officials at Panama, urging them to return to their allegiance to Colombia. Profuse promises of speedy action in favor of the canal are made.

It is stated that it is too late for intervention. marks the passing of the de facto gov-

Javier, bishop of Panama, requesting a continuance of the cordial relations which have existed between church and state and soliciting the bishop's co-operation in educational matters. Bishop Javier replied, promising his co-operation.

AMEND ORDERS TO CAPTAINS.

State Department Authorities Rescind Warlike Command.

Ever since the revolution on the isthmus broke out one complication after another has arisen to upset the international law experts in the state Washington. enartment at The president at first instructed the captains of ships of war to prevent Coembarking for lombian troops isthmian ports.

After a series of consultations the state department came to the conclu- familiarity with the laws of diplomsion that any such action on the part of our ships would clearly be acts of war against Colombia. The orders have been accordingly revoked and commanders of our ships have been instructed to use moral suasion only. If this proves unsuccessful they will follow the troops and prevent their being disembarked anywhere in the vicinity of the Panama railroad.

What principally caused the withdrawal of the original orders was the fact that the ships engaged in the ence to any military plans on foot for transport of Colombian troops from the subjugation of the Panama states. Buena Ventura were two British As far as the state and navy depart- tramp steamers. The original orders ments can learn, Colombia is not at provided that Commander Diehl of the cruiser Boston should go to Buena Ventura and warn the masters of transports as well as the commander of troops that vessels would not be allowed to leave port with soldiers on board.

Further consideration of the situation has compelled the state department to believe that such action would not only be an act of hostility on the part of the United States against Colombia but would be a serious attack upon the freedom of action of a neutral ship which certainly would be resented by the British government and which might in turn provoke European American ships The state department, however, has will follow the two transports to decided to request the authorities at isthmian waters, where the authority Panama to receive Gen. Reyes in the of the United States under the treaty is held to be paramount

This situation, which has such a distinct international flavor, has aroused great attention among the diplomats at Washington, and they say it was a ment that he has been requested by wise move on the part of this government to admit its mistake and as had been feared at Washington, in- | form the Washington government that | withdraw the order sent and confine the report that Germany intended to its activity to the isthmus itself, where the right to maintain complete neutrality is admitted.

> Herran Warning Ignored. It is stated also on authority that Dr. Herran, the Colombian charge d' arraires here, was fully aware of the plot for the independence of Panama. He notified his home government, as well as Secretary Hay, of what was impending. It was Dr. Herran, however, who actually negotiated the canal treaty with the United States. He was not in favor with the statesmen at Bogota. They believed his warnings were sent out to induce them to ratify the treaty and they neglected strengthening the military forces on the isthmus until too late. If Colombia had been strong enough on the isthmus to prevent the revolution making headway, this country would have been forced to prevent bloodshed under the treaty, and would have stood by the Colombian government just as it is standing by the revolutionary government to-day. The result of the whole trouble, as every one expects, will be still another revolution at Bogota itself, which will overthrow the present Colombian government entirely.

Beaupre, United States minister at Bogota, Colombia, who has been instructed to recognize the govi ernment set up by the people of Panama, is an Illinoisan who has distinguished himself in the diplomatic De Kalb, but soon moved to Aurora, and a few months after he had reached the age of 21 was elected clerk of the city court. Then he became deputy clerk of Kane county, and in 1886 was elected county clerk. Mr. Beaupre's first diplomatic appointment came in the early part of President McKinley's administration, when he was made first secretary of the legation at Guatemala. He was next appointed consul general at the same place, and his conduct winning approval at Washington, he was transferred to Bogota as consul general, was appointed envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary in Febborn in Oswego, Kendall county, and

The Hubbite sniffed. "I cannot see said he, "how an immortal being can waste his time with such stuff." "Are you quite sure," asked Miller,

"In that case," replied the Califor nian, grimly, "I don't see why I should be so very economical of my time."

"An 8-year-old person of my acquaintance," says a writer in an English magazine, "was extremely angry at being commanded to pray for the Boer wounded as well as the English during the late war. Her usual war prayer was a very bellicose affair: Pless our dear, beautiful soldiers and our darling sailors and don't let any of them get hurt, and make them well soon if they must be and send an the Boers to hell.' To this her guardian commanded that there should be added a petition for the Boer wounded; but the little lady did not mean to tolerate such half-hearted nonsense. Under severe compulsion she added the required words, but a bystander overheard a soft whisper at the end of the prayer: 'Never mind bout the Boers." Get Even With the Duchess. The young duchess of Manchester, formerly Miss Zimmerman of Cincinnati, has little love for show, but she has a great idea of the deference due to an English duchess. Not long ago she was standing in the lobby of an Irish hotel, waiting for her husband, when an American woman stepped up Miss Blank? I am waiting to see her." The duchess drew herself up somewhat haughtily and replied: "I am the duchess of Manchester." "Oh, indeed; I am from Cincinnati, too," was the rather severe reply, and the stranger bowed and passed into the hotel.

A Curious Error. A distinguished French clergyman was making his first visit to America and among other things was having a tussle with the English language.

Little by little he conquered it, but occasionally a new word and its meaning staggered him. He had on one occasion some "kippered salmon," for supper, and he asked what kippered meant. He was told that it meant reserved. Not long after the clergyman was asked to make a public prayer, and he amazed his hearers by imploring God to "kipper" the congregation.

About midday Mr. Cody and a companion, both wearing lifebelts, made a start, amid the cheers of a crowd of spectators on the sea front, says an English exchange. As soon as she was launched the little craft sped away at a good pace towards the French coast, but after she had traveled some distance t was seen from the shore that the kite lines were slackening. On reaching the lightship the boat encountered rough water set up by a strong easterly current and as the wind veered rapidly to the west the kites began to point up channel. Ultimately one of them fell into the sea and, it being obvious by this time that the French coast could not be reached, the attempt was abandoned.

Mouse Won His Freedom. During the digging of heles for telegraph poles in New York not long ago, the workmen noticed a mouse which had fallen into one of the cavities. For hours the tiny prisoner raced frantically around the enclosure. Then he seemed to get over his hysterics and set his wits to work. Soon he began systematically to dig a spiral groove, round and round the inner surface of the hole, which was several feet deep. Night and day the busy little captive worked away digging little pockets here and there as his improvised staircase got farther from the ground, so that he might rest from his hard labors. The workmen kept him supplied with food, and after the third day the indefatigable little creature reached the top, and enthusiastic cheering welcomed his

A huge bear held up a trolley car unning from Nealmont to Tyrone, Pa. The motorman saw a dark object astride one of the rails, and believing it was a man, applied the power and stopped the car within a few feet of the object, which turned out to be a black bear prepared for battle. The motorman dropped the fender of the car and applying all the power shot the car forward. It struck the bear amidships and hurled him to the side of the track. The assault disconcerted the animal, and evidently in fright. it took to the mountain at the side of the road.

Dr. M. M. Wickware was in Detroit on Tuesday, and while there purchased an R. V. Wagner mica plate static machine, with X ray and violet ray attachments, the same being a high-grade machine costing $275 net. There are machines on the market selling for $125, but the doctor preferred to secure the best, one that is strong enough to give a satisfactory X-ray picture and for all electrical treatments. The static machines have been in use in sanitariums and hospitals for a number of years, and the doctor has had considerable experience in operating them. The X-ray and violet ray features are quite recent discoveries, but are simply attachments to the static machines, and used principally for examining bones, locating foreign bodies and tumors and for the treatment of cancer and lupus. The stomach and bowels cannot be viewed, as some irregular practitioners throughout the country have given people to understand, as the light penetrates ail ordinary tissues. The liver, heart or solid tumor would stand out in black outline. The static electrical treatments when scientifically applied in proper cases are a valuable aid to the regular treatment, and in some cases alone effect a cure. The mica plate machines can be run at a high rate of speed and are not effected by damp weather as are the ordinary glass plate machine. Dr. Wickware realizes the necessity of securing all the improved appliances that have been proven practical, yet maintains that the strictest care must be used to get the desired benefit from even the best.

Secured Judgment.

On Wednesday of last week suit was brought before Justice Jas. Brooker against Wm. Gougherty, by John Yopp, to recover a certain sum of money which had been paid to Gougherty, as well as wages due Yopp. It appears that Yopp came here from New York state to work for Gougherty and that shortly after the latter made a trip back to that state. He was requested to collect an unpaid bill there for Yopp, which he did, but only turned over a part of the amount upon returning. Suit was brought to recover the balance, also for wages. E. B. Landon appeared for plaintiff and J. D. Brooker for defendant. Yopp was given a judgment for some

THE SECOND NUMBER.

James Speed at the Opera House Thanksgiving Evening

The second number of our Lecture Course as announced will be given in the Opera House next Thursday evening, by James Speed, the wonderful lecturer on nature. More properly speaking this will be the first number of the course, owing to the dissapointment in the concert company not arriving here on the evening of the 6th. Mr. Speed has made himself famous as a student of Nature, and as one of the few who can interest others in what has so interested him. Everywhere there is a desire to know more of the outdoors, but people have been deterred by the feeling that it is all too deep, and that it requires technical training, but Mr. Speed takes the standpoint of the observer in the field and gives out valuable information in a way that is fascinating and interesting. His lectures possess a force and charm that make them positively uplifting. Do not fail to hear him.

Pleasant Surprise.

A very pleasant affair took place on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Archie McPhail, south of town. That day was the twenty-first anniversary of their wedding, as well as that of their neighbors, Mr. and Cass City team was pulled off at Pigeon Mrs. A. A. Livingston. Neighbors and deck hand, became tangled with a line against the team of that place with a part in the surprise and a most enjoyable time was had by all. The time was spent in singing, speech-making, repast was served to which all did justice. Mrs. Livingstone was presented with a rocking chair and Mrs. Mc. Phail with a silver berry and tea spoons.

Farmers' Institutes.

Plans are maturing for the county farmers' institute to be held in Tuscola county during January next, and from information which we are able to gain at this time it is designed to hold one day institutes at Cass City, Mayville, Fairgrove, Kingston, Tuscola and Millington, with a two day round up institute in Caro Jan. 22 and 23. The subject to be considered at the one day institutes are: Dairying, sugar beets, cucumber culture, improvement of schools, etc. Mrs. C. W. Heller will act as presiding officer of the woman's section. The topics for the two day institute will be sugar beets, dairying, stock breeding, potatoe growing, road building, farmers' organizations, improvement of rural schools, how to fat cattle, fruit growing, etc. W. #### Attention Farmers.

Why remain in the North and stay in doors six months in the year consuming what you raise during the other six months?

Go South where you can work out doors every month in the year, and where you are producing something the year round. If you are a stock raiser you know your stock are now "eating their heads off" and, besides, have to be protected from the rigors of winter by expensive shelter.

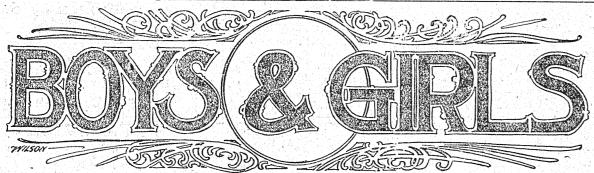

Economical stock feeding requires the combination of both flesh-forming and fat-forming foods in certain proportions. Alabama and Florida produce in abundance the velvet bean and cassava, the first a flesh producer, and the latter a fat producer, and they are the cheapest and best fattening materials known to the world.

More money can be made and with less labor, in general farming, fruit and berry growing and truck gardening along our road in the South than in any other section of the Union

week so that there shall be four squares in each row, up and down, across and diagonally.

How the Ant Retires.

Of course ants go to bed and if you watch them you may see them do it. An ant hill, you know, is made of tiny pebbles, which are piled about an entrance hole.

At night the ants take these pebbles in their mouths and, carrying them to the hole, pile them one upon the other, as men build a wall.

After the hole is filled up, except one tiny place at the top, the last ant crawls in and with her head pushes sand up against the hole from the inside, thus stopping it up entirely. Then all night not an ant will be seen but about 8 o'clock next morning, if one looks very closely, one may see a pair of tiny feelers thrust out through the chinks between the stones. Then an ant pushes its wa out and begins to carry the pebble away. Just behind the first comes another, and another, until the whole family comes journeying out. But an ant does not sleep through the whole hight; she takes a nap two or three hours long.

She does not have to undress, but thenever she gets tired she lies down on the ground, curls her six legs up to her body and goes to sleep so soundly that you could brush her with a feather without waking her. When she has had her sieep out she gets up, stretches her legs and vawns just as you or I might dc. Then she washes herself carefully all over.

After that she is ready for her day's work again, and a busy day she has, too-tending the babies, making new rooms or getting food for the big family.

Bee's Tonque

The bee has a long tongue-after the manner of a busybody. He has teeth, too, but instead of chewing his food vertically, he cuts it by a sidewise motion of his mandibles.

Buried Words.

Buried words is a game played by two or more persons, one of whom gives a sentence in which a word is concealed by being formed partly of one of the words in the sentence and partly of one or more immediately fol lowing. Thus the word "London" is concealed or "buried" in the sentence, "Do not let the rain fall on Don Carlos," as will be seen if the proper letters be capitalized, thus, "Do not let the rain fall ON DON Carlos." The one who gives out the sentence must state that the buried word is the name of a city, person, flower, article of food, or whatever it may be, and the first one who guesses it correctly scores a point. The guesser then gives out another sentence, and the game goes on for any length of time agreed on, or until some one has scored a certain number of points After a little practice words can thus be buried very skilfully. The hardest ones to guess are those in which pronouncing the words gives no clew. Thus in the following "buried fruits" the former can be guessed by pronouncing the sentence slowly, while the latter cannot: "Some fairy OR ANGEI must have done this," "The babbon and aPE ARe both curious animals." word "rang is so contained. A sen. same way you can make a cradle (c). board, as shown in the illustration.

tence must now be constructed with | than Helen. Here is the way to place the de the word "rang" in it, while the word tached squares on the diagram of nine just before must end with "o," and squares as given in the puzzle of last that just following begin with "e." Thus, "They danced a fandango, rang Edward's door bell, and behaved very panion. wildly." It will be seen that the word is thus "buried" much more deeply than in the other example given.

> King Is He Who Gets the Most. If this game is played out of doors a large bowl or basketful of small pebbles will do; indoors a bowl of small white beans or peanuts would answer. This bowl is placed at an equal distance from the equally divided party. There is a captain on each side. He or she says: "The king is he who gets the most. One, two, three,' At this the opposite captains run to the bowl, grasp as many pebbles or beans as he can in one hand, and dashes back to his place. Then the next two in line become captains, and do the same. After all have tried a count is taken, and those who have the most all go upon one side. There may be fewer on that side, but they ought to be the best equipped, though they may not be at the second try. At this bount the strength of the two parties is decided.

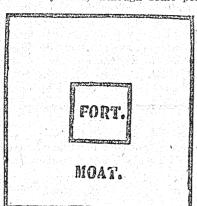

Try to Tie It. Obtain a piece of string about a yard long and lay it out straight on a table. Take one end between the forefirzer and thumb of the right hand and the other end between the forefinger and thumb of the left hand. Now try to tie a knot in the string without loosening the hold at either

Like most other tricks, this is easy to do when you know how. Simply fold your arms before picking up the ends of the string, unfold them, and you have an ordinary knot tied in the end.

Moat and Fort Puzzle.

Here is a puzzle that is likely to prove very hard, although some people think of the solution at once. The inside square is a fort, surrounded by a moat or ditch represented by the outside square. The distance from the outside edge of the moat to the wall of the fort is nowhere less than six feet. Some soldiers who wanted to get to the fort had only two planks, each exactly 5 feet 11 inches long, to make a bridge with, and they had no nails to fasten the planks together. How did the soldiers get to the fort?

Can You Guess? When Helen Fiske was 8 years old she had a birthday party, and all her little friends were invited. They had a delightful time playing games and singing, and after supper they amused themselves guessing riddles for a time. The children told some very good ones that were hard to guess, but the one that puzzled them most of all was the one that Mrs. Fiske gave, and this is what she said: "You all know, children, that this is you know that I am a great deal older | ture to leave its mate.

Such luxuries ase the ordinary "truck patch" represents are practically unknown on the tables of the Yukon Valley. "As we neared the delectable spot," writes this many experienced woman, "the river banks were lined with canoes; many natives stood looking at us from the shore, and while stevedores handled the wood, many passengers visited the It was not long before they came back with handfuls of turnips, just pulled from the ground, which, had these been the most luscious fruit, could not have been eaten with more

Tale of Two Badgers.

Two French peasants, accompanied by a dog, happened one day to start a badger, to which the dog gave chase The animal hid beneath a tree, but it was got out and killed. As the commune or parish gave a reward for slain badgers, the peasants proposed to convey it to the nearest village, a few miles off. Making a rope of tough twigs, they dragged it behind them. By and by the squeal of an animal was heard, and they then saw another badger following them. Although they attempted to drive it away, it took no notice of them, but came up to the dead badger and began to lick it. The men now gave up trying to frighten it off, and again fell to dragging their burden, whereupon the live badger lay down beside the killed one seized it gently by the ear, and thus allowed itself to be dragged to the Helen's 8th birthday. Now, I never village. Here neither dogs nor men have had but seven birthdays, and yet | nor boys could force the faithful crea-

Buff Turkeys.

From Farmers'. Review: After hav ing tried the Bronze, Narragansett. Black, White, Holland and Slate, we decided that the Buff was the most profitable as well as the handsomest of all breeds. While they are not quite so large as the Bronze and Narragansetts, they mature earlier and are therefore more valuable for those raising turkeys for the market, as the Thanksgiving turkeys are usually a higher price than later in the season. The Buff turkey should be a good uniform buff color throughout (no white wings or tails) although it is very hard to get the wings and tails without some black or dark color in them as in the Buff chickens. When dressed they make a very nice appearance as their skin is a good rich yellow color and their body very plump. Beaks, shanks and toes are bluish white or flesh color. Head, long, broad and red. The body should be long and deep, mounted on good strong shanks and thighs. We find that we can raise to maturity a large per cent of the poults as the hens are good mothers as well as sitters and not given to wandering, as is the case with most turkeys. Our turkeys uually nest about the yard in barrels or boxes or in the orchard near the house and often in the chicken house If a hen becomes broody and is not in a good place to hatch you can move her to the sitting room, the same as a chicken hen. We have never yet been able to supply the demand for buff turkeys for breeders. Would like to hear from other breeders of Buffs .- Mrs. F. G. Smith, Ogle County, Illinois.

The Pigeon Fly

Pigeons must be given exercise in the open air and sunlight. For this purpose a wire cage or "fly" is built. We show such a fly in our illustration.

Pigeon House and Fly.

On this subject a government bul-"I tried to buy one from a young letin says: The ground should be leveled. In the case of the fly in the illustration the distance from the outframe of the fly is made of hemlock with the side of the building, six supports the end of the fly 32 feet additional 4-inch board is nailed between at such a height that a netting four feet wide will reach from it to the strips above and below. This gives a wire wall 8 feet high. The fly is divided into sections corresponding to the sections in the house.

Perches. We know but little of what constitutes the best kind of a perch. Poultrymen who have made experiments along this line have arrived at different conclusions. Some experiments made in Australia seemed to show that the birds preferred half-round perches. Others have said that the natural perch is the round perch, to correspond with the limbs of trees, to which the birds in their wild state were accustomed. One man who made experiments with different kinds of perches said that his birds preferred 2x4's laid down on their sides. This seems rather remarkable The writer has used two 2x4's set up on edge, and the birds seemed to be satisfied. It is true, however, that the fowls in this case had no choice in the matter. Low perches are far preferable to high perches, and all perches should be on the same level. If they are arranged in ladder form, one behind and above the other, the birds will all seek the highest one, this being an instinct that has clung to them from the time when they had to seek the highest limbs of trees to keep out of the reach of foxes, skunks and other wild animals. But as man now protects the birds, this habit need not be encouraged. The high perches result in many injuries to fowls, especially those of heavy weight. Also, when perches are high, eggs dropped in the night are broken and the birds get a chance to begin a career of eggeating. When the perches are low, eggs dropped in the night are seldom broken, especially if there is a covering of anything over the floor. Two feet from the floor is as good as any other height for perches.

All perches should be removable. so that they may be taken out at any time and cleaned. The writer has found the best way to be to have two to take out the roosts and remove the horses. If it is desired to prevent mites getting from the hens to the nests the parts of the horses resting on the floor can be placed in vessels in which is kerosene. In that way the migrations of the red mites will be stopped.

Perches are always the point from which the red mites attack the fowls. and they should therefore be carefully watched. Red mites do not stay on the fowls at night and generally collect on the under sides of the roosts. If the roosts are made of rough lumber, the insects will fill every minute crevice. It is better, therefore, to have planed lumber, and to paint it. When lice get into rough lumber it is exceedingly difficult to rid it of the pests. The writer had a case of this kind, where he had to kerosene and burn over the roosts for four or five days in succession, before the roosts were fit to put back again. Where the insects came from each day was a mystery, but a new colony appeared each morning for a

Progress in Dairying.

At the recent annual meeting of the floistein-Friesian Associaation, Prof. H. H. Dean said: True progress cannot take place in the dairy business, or in any other business, unless we have the people educated. And one of the things which we have been developing in our country in connection with the dairy business, and one which we found to be very satisfactory, is the grouping of the various cheese factories into small groups or syndicates of from twenty-five to thirty factories, putting an expert man in charge of these factories. He visits these factories at least once a month, holds meetings of the patrons, discusses with them the importance of good cows, how to feed these cows, how to care for the milk, advises the cheesemaker as to how he can improve his product, and I think that we have possibly struck one of the notes which will do more to improve our cheese business than anything we have yet done along that line. sociation, which was called at the retered over colleges, over a large numquest of the Dairy Commissioner, we, ber of factories, fifty, sixty, one hunthe undersigned, were appointed a dred, or two hundred, or three hundred dred factories, and they were not getting at the men on the farm, who were producing the milk, who were producing the raw material; and our dairy industry and your dairy industry depends upon the quality of the raw material which is produced; and hence you, as farmers, as breeders of dairy catile, as men who are sup perior in quality to those cured in the plying milk to the cheese factories ordinary way, the difference in quality and creameries of the various ordinary way, the difference in quality are the men who are at the foundation of the business; and these are the men who in the past we have been unable to reach; but our system of instruction now has been able to get at the man on the average farm, and has produced wonderful results in our

Queer Street Names.

Many British towns have distinctive and interesting names for their streets. London's Cheanside and Aldwych are more than matched by oddities many times stranger. Bootham is a street in York, and Botchergate in Carlisle. Norwich is assertive of class distinction in Gentleman's Walk, and Shrewsbury may stand almost at the head of a list of peculiarities with its street labeled Dogpole, which may or may not be related to Newcastle's Dogleap Stairs; but then Newcastle has Pudding Chare, and what may that signify?

Instead of a letter the following was written on the envelope: "A burglar is under the bed; run fetch the police." The husband returned in a few minutes with a policeman and the man was arrested. The burglar had no idea that the lady knew he was there until the policeman pulled him out.

A Story With a Moral.

A parrot and a dog were left in a room together. The parrot, out of mischief said to the dog, "Sic him." The dog, seeing nothing else, went for the parrot and tore out about half his tail feathers before he escaped to his perch. The parrot, after looking himself over and reflecting a little said: "Poll, you talk too much." There are many people, old and young, who would do well to remember this story

AN OLD TIMER.

Has Had Experiences.

A woman who has used Postum Food Coffee since it came upon the market eight years ago knows from experience the necessity of using Postum in place of coffee if one values health and a steady brain.

She says: "At the time Postum was first put on the market I was suffering from nervous dyspepsia and my physician had repeatedly told me not to use tea or coffee. Finally I decided to take his advice and try Postum and got a sample and had it carefully prepared, finding it delicious to the taste. So I continued its use and very soon its beneficial effects convinced me of its value, for I got well of my nervousness and dyspepsia.

"My husband had been drinking coffee all his life until it had affected his nerves terribly. I persuaded him to shift to Postum and it was easy to get him to make the change for the Postum is so delicious. It certainly worked wonders for him:

"We soon learned that Postum does not exhilarate or depress and does not stimulate, but steadily and honestly strengthens the nerves and the stomach. To make a long story short our entire family have now used Postum for eight years with completely satisfying results as shown in our fine condition of health, and we have noticed a rather unexpected improvement in brain and nerve power." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

Increased brain and nerve power always follow the use of Postum in place of coffee, sometimes in a very marked manner.

CHAPTER VI.

Edward Franklin, Lawyer. Edward Franklin had taken up his law studies in the office of Judge Bradley, the leading lawyer of the little village of Bloomsbury, where Franklin was born, and where he had spent most of his life previous to the time of his enlistment in the army Judge Bradley was successful, as such matters go in such communities, and it was his open boast that he owed his success to himself and no one else.

Thirty-five years earlier, a raw youth from old Vermont, Hollis N. Bradley had walked into the embrystate to you that I am safely arrived onic settlement of Bloombsbury with a single law book under his arm and naught but down upon his chin. He main. I must tell you that this is to pleaded his first cause before a judge who rode circuit over a territory now divided into three congressional districts. He won his first case, for his antagonist was even more ignorant than he. As civilization advanced he defended fewer men for stealing hogs and more for murder and adultery. His practice grew with the growth of the population of the country about him. He was elected county attorney, local counsel for the railroad, and judge of the Circuit Court. He was mentioned for gubernatorial honors, and would perhaps have received the party nomination but for the breaking out of the civil war. Not fancying the personal risks of the army, he hired a substitute, and this sealed his ters under tent, following example of political fate, for Illinois at that time all men, for as yet there are scarce a did not put in power men who sent It was an immemorial custom in the furtherest one yet reached by Bloomsbury for the youth who had Rail. "I am persuaded, my dear boy, that this is the place for you to come. There are an Hundred ways in which one may earn a Respectable living, and I find here no Class Distinction. It is an extraordinary fact that no man and no profession ranks another here. One man is quite good as another.

"A year from now, as I am told, we shall have 2,000 Persons living here, and in five years this will be a City. Conceive the opportunity meantime. The Cattle business is bound to grow, and I am advised that all this land will Ultimately be farmed and prove rich as that through which I Past in coming out. You are welcome, my dear Ned, as I am sure you know, to half my blankets and rations during your stay here, however long same may be, and I most cordially invite you to come out and look over this country, nor do I have the smallest doubt that it will seem to you quite as it does to me, and I shall hope that we make a Citizen of you.

not back to their places. They were forgotten, save once a year, upon Decoration Day, when Judge Bradley made eloquent tribute above their graves. It was therefore predetermined that Edward Franklin should go into the office of Judge Bradley to begin his law studies, after he had decided that the profession of the law was the one likely to offer him the best career.

It was one of the unvarying rules of Judge Bradley's office, and indeed this was almost the only rule which he imposed, that the law student within his gates, no matter what his age or earlier servitude, should each morning sweep out the office, and should. when so requested, copy out any law papers needing to be executed in duplicate. So long as a student did these things, he was welcome as long as he cared to stay. Edward Franklin accepted his seat in Judge Bradley's office without any reservations, and he paid his daily fee of tenure as had all the other students before him, scorning not the broom. Ardent, ambitious and resolute, he fell upon Blackstone, Chitty and Kent as though he were asked to carry a redoubt. He read six, eight, ten hours a day, until his head buzzed. and he forgot what he had read. Then at it all over again, with teeth set. Thus through more than a year he toiled, lashed forward by his own determination, until at length he began to see some of the beautiful first principles of the law. So in his second year Franklin fared somewhat beyond principles merely, and got into notes and bills, torts, contracts and reme- ation. dies. He learned with a shiver how a promise might legally be broken, how a gift should be regarded with suspicion, how a sacred legacy might be set aside. He read these things again and again, and forced them into his brain, so that they might never be forgotten; yet this part of the law he loved not so much as its grand first principles of truth and justice. One morning, after Franklin had finished his task of sweeping down the with Battersleigh's letter in his hand: he said; "he's a good deal of a Don in the early spring. A long and hazy looking after him."

street lay in perspective before the window, and along it, out beyond the confines of the town, there reached the flat monotony of the dark prairie soil. A dog crossed the street, pausing midway of the crossing to scratch his ear. The cart of the leading grocer was hitched in front of his store and an idle citizen or two paused near by to exchange a morning greeting. All the little, uneventful day was beginning, as it had begun so many times before here in this little, uneventful town, where the world was finished. never more to change. Franklin shuddered. Was this, then to be his life? There came a regular tread upon to your mother's-and, for goodness the stair as there had always for years come at this hour of half past seven in the morning, rain or shine. Judge Bradley entered, tall, portly, smooth shaven, his silk hat pushed back upon his brow, as was his fashion. Franklin turned to make the usual morning salutation.

"Got a letter from your girl?" "Not so lucky," said Franklin.

'From a friend." Silence resulted. Judge Bradley opened his desk, took off his coat and hung it on a nail, after his custom, turned over the papers for a moment and remarked absentmindedly, and more to be polite than because the matter interested him, "Friend, ch?"

"Yes," said Franklin, "friend, out West"; and both relapsed again into silence. Franklin once more fell to gazing out of the window, but at length turned toward the desk and pulled over his chair to a closer speaking distance. "Judge Bradley," said he, "I shouldn't wonder if I could pass my examination for the bar." "Well, now," said the judge, "I hope you can. That's nice. Goin' to hang out your shingle, eh?" "I might, if I got my license." "Oh, that's easy," replied the other; 'it's mostly a matter of form. No trouble about it—not in the least."

"I am clear in my own mind that I don't know much about law," said Franklin, "and I should not think of going up for examination if that ended my studies in the profession. If I were intending to go into practice here, sir, or near by, I should not think of applying for admission for at least another year. But the fact is, I'm thinking of going away."

"Goin' away?" Judge Bradley straightened up, and his expression if anything was one of relief. He had his own misgivings about this gravefaced and mature young man should he go into the practice at the Blomsbury bar. It was well enough to encourage such possibilities to take their test in some other locality. Judge Bradley therefore became more cheer ful. "Goin' away, eh?" he said. "Where to?"

"Out West," said Franklin, unconsciously repeating the phrase which was then upon the lips of all the young men of the country.

"Out West, eh?" said the judge, with still greater cheerfulness. "That's right that's right. That's the place to go to, where you can get a better chance. I came West in my day myself, though it isn't West now: an that's how I got my start. There's ten chances out there to where there's one here, an' you'll get better pay for what you do. I'd advise it, sir-I'd advise it; ves, indeed."

"I think it will be better," said Franklin calmly.

The Diet Fad.

Apropos, the diet craze of the last two or three years may not and does not perform all that it promises for those who listen to the voice of the medical or other faddist, says the London World, but from its extravagances may come ultimate good, and another generation may reap happily where we have sown. The time may come, a great continental doctor believes. when the science of dieting will be so perfected that we shall not merely be able, as we do now, to keep people alive much longer, but we shall likewise keep them in a useful condition. Octogenarians will retain their faculties to the full, senility will be avoided, and if, perhaps, grandfathers and grandmothers do not contrive to preserve their youthful appearance to the end, they will at least, so we are assured, be as clear-brained at 77 as at 27, and thus, with the advantage of ripe experience, they will help on the work of more youthful brains and temper the follies of the rising gener-

I didn't. to raise statesmen and presidents rived carrying his little daughter, these days without copper-toed, redtopped boots for boys?

I remember my first pair. Got 'em for Christmas. Mother had them hidden away in the old bureau drawer where I wasn't supposed to snoop. They fit, too, like a glove, and the copper toes shone beautifully. And the red tops—they were the cynosure of all the boy eyes in our neighborfood for weeks.

And how majestically they squeak-

Had to oil them three times a week, and even then they were stiff and unmanageable after a night of coasting.

Then, when skating time came, father donated ten cents to have some skate plates put in the heels. Sometimes the screws caught in mother's carpet, but what of that? Wasn't I the only boy in the family and might

In Our Alley.

A tome in our alley has lost all sense of nhame, while his flat etiquette is deplorably improficient-he plays his piano after 11 o'clock at night, and with no soft pedal at that. Just what he is trying to explain we have not yet deciphered, but we take it he is carrying a message to Garcia and has lost the envelope in the deep grass of our back yard. We have substituted thirty-seven miscellaneous articles, from a bootiack to a little monkey-business we found on our wife's dresser, but nothing sent yet seems to please the cat. Evidently Garcia is Eard to satisfy.

ARTIST KEPT FUR MANTLE.

Valuable Fur Garment a Reward for Successful Duplicity.

The late artist, Hans Canon, once painted a Russian prince in a magnifancy so completely that he endeavortoward his house. Hastily slipping armchair near the fire. The prince, seeing Canon groaning and trembling at the fireside. "What is the matter with you?" he asked. "Oh," groaned Canon, "I don't know what it is, but I feel so weak and wretched, and I cannot get warm. Two days ago my brother died of smallpox and I am a bit nervous about myself." The artist kept the coat.

The Value of Nitrogen.

The chemists of the agricultural department have shown that ability to fix the nitrogen, which is infinitely abundant in the air and apply it to the wornout fields of the world, will enable mankind to cultivate what is practically virgin soil forever. The only available nitrogen is the nitrate of soda beds in the rainless strip between the Andes and the Pacific, which is owned or controlled by the Chilanos. This niter is a product of guano, there being no rain to dissolve it out. A plant at Niagara Falls is taking nitrogen from the air by electrolysis, but not yet in commercial quantity

The Doctor's Statement.

St. John. Kan., Nov. 16.—This town has a genuine sensation in the case of a little boy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. William McBride. Dr. Limes, the attending physician, says:

"Scarlet Fever of a very malignant type brought this child very near to death and when the fever left him he was semi-paralyzed in the right leg and right arm. He also lost hearing in his right ear, and his mind was much affected.

"His parents tried another treatment for a time and when I was recalled I found that he was having spells very like Epilepsy and was very bad and gradually growing worse. advised the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills and in a short time the child began to improve. Inside of a week the nervous spasms or epileptic seizures ceased altogether.'

Mr. and Mrs. McBride have made a sworn statement of the facts and Dr Jesse L. Limes has added his sworn statement saying that Dodd's Kidney Pills and nothing else cured the fits.

Bible in Walnut Shell. A wonderful curiosity was the little Bible in a walnut shell the size of a small hen's egg, an account of which has been preserved among the Hareian manuscripts, and which Mr. Disaeli quoted as "a rare piece of work brought to pass by Peter Bales, an Englishman and a clerk of the Chantery." It was quite unreadable withbut a magnifying glass, but contained ts many leaves as a large Bible, and ts much reading matter on each page.

The mosquito which injects yellow fever with its probiscis bites by day as well as by night, and is called the day or striped mosquito. It is found chiefly in cities, where it breeds in any chance receptacle of water. The eggs are laid in standing water, and, although the receptacle may dry up, the eggs do not desicate, but will hatch as soon as it again contains water. The larvae resemble those of other mosquitoes, and are readily killed by a kerosene film on the surface of the water

Everybody knows the great value of this remedy in the household, but everybody does not know that the imitations of it, which some second class druggists dishonwhich some second class druggists disnon-orably paim off on their customers, have little or no value. What should be under-stood by the public is, that it is not a mere question of comparative value between "Vaseline" and the imitations, but that the mitations do not effect the wonderful healing results of the world renowned "Vaseline," and that they are not the same thing nor made in the same way. Besides this, many of the imitations are harmful, irritant and not safe to use, while true Vase-line is perfectly harmless.

Perfect safety therefore lies in buying only original bottles and other packages put up by the Chesebrough Manufacturing Co.

"DEAR MRS. PINHHAM: -I cannot tell you with pen and ink what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me, suffering from the ills peculiar to the sex, extreme lassitude and that all gone feeling. I would rise from my bed in the morning feeling more tired than when I went to bed, but before I used two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, I began to feel the buoyrncy of my younger days returning, became regular, could do more work and not feel tired than I had ever been able to do before, so I continued to use it until I was restored to perfect health. It is indeed a boon to sick women and I heartily recommend it.
