Talk about the spirit of graft in America—the waste in the public finance of Uncle Sam's officers can not be compared to the loss of the French Republic as shown by comparing the figures-$266,000,000 French capital sacrificed for $40,000,000.

The value of the individual taking art in the public rhetoricals cannot ne overestimated and we believe that any student taking part in these rhetoricals will be better fitted for the future. We were pleased to note the interest manifested last week.

Prof. Sinclair gave the High School students a short talk on military drill in marching and advised the pupils to practice a little of this in their marching, as a shambling marcher was likely to be shambling in habits throughout life; that soldiers were put in a guard house for ten days. Don't Borrow Trouble.

It is a bad habit to borrow anything, but the worst thing you can possibly borrow, is trouble. When sick, sore, heavy, weary and worn-out by the pains and poisons of dyspepsia, biliousness, Bright's disease, and similar internal disorders, don't sit down and brood over your symptoms, but fly for relief to Electric Bitters. Here you will find sure and permanent forgetfulness of all your roubles, and your body will not be urdened by a load of debt disease. At E. Ryan's Drug Store. Price 50c. Guar

The Mustache.

The home of the mustache is in Spain, and here is the history of its origin: After the Moors first invaded Company, Ltd., has moved the old the country the Christian and Moslem Cooley residence from the corner of population became so mixed that it at the corner of Garfield Avenue and and which Spaniards. The Spaniards then hit upon a means by which they could at once distinguish their brethren. They o'd not shave their lips any longer and they allowed a tuft of hair to grow below their under lips, so that their beards formed the rude outline of a cross. Thus the mustache became a symbol of liberty and fraternity.

Have a Purpose. Have a purpose in life and stick to it. Be sure you're right, that the purpose is worth your effort, that to win is just the thing, and then stick. For a moment after the door closed upon the men, Joan and Margaret stood in silence regarding each other. Suddenly Margaret ran impulsively to Joan, clasping her about the neck. "I know!" she said, looking up into her face.

It was night in the city of Courtland, and a time of great fear. Ever and anon from the east, where were the camps of the opposed forces, there came a sound, heavy and sonorous, like distant thunder. Whereat the frighted wives of the burghers of Courtland said, "I wonder what mother's son lies a-dying now. Hearken to the talking of Great Peg the Mar graf's cannon!"

At the western or Brandenburg gate there was yet greater fear. For the news had spread athwart the city that a great body of horsemen had paused in front of it, and were being held in parley by the guard on duty, till the Lady Joan, Governor of the city, should be made aware.

The Governor of the city, roused from a rare slumber, leaped on her horse and went clattering with an escort through the unsleeping streets. Looking out, Joan could see a dark mass of horsemen, while above them glinted in the pale starlight a forest of spearheads.

Whence come you, strangers? cried Joan.

The Horse Importing Business. Dr. D. E. Salmon, chief of the Government Bureau of Animal Industry at Washington, D. C., has come out in print as opposed to the wholesale importation of stallions for purposes of speculation only. He thinks that forses of the best quality and known urity of blood, animals that will be the most likely to benefit our horse the table in a roar, and yet never stock when used for breeding purposes should be brought over the water freely, but that hundreds of other stallions, not of the best quality or breeding, had better be left in their native countries. This at least is the purport of what he has said to one who reads between the lines under-Anna Pappenheim caught her skirts standingly; and in our opinion there in her hand, and spun round on her is need for just such opposition as this and for action also looking to the improvement of the character of the "Sister, what was that?" she cried, horses imported, writes A. S. Alexan-

Dr. Salmon points out that while stallions are imported in great numbers few mares are brought over, comparatively speaking. This indeed has been the case, and the reason apparently is that a mare cannot be sold to a company of farmers for a price far exceeding her value. The mare has to be bought by one man or a firm and not more than a fair price, including expense of importation, will be paid for her. On the other hand the stallion will make money for the owner, and for that reason a company buys him at a very high price, which does not seem so high after it has been divided among twenty partners. So brisk has been the demand for stalions of late that importers have brought them in by the hundred and have sold most of them to companies.

Many of the stallions have been poor specimens and many of them unsound, while as many more have been so short in pedigree that they could not be expected to do the best of work in breeding, although they were eligible to entry free of duty. At the same time it must be conceded that a great many finely bred and individually excellent and sound stallions have been imported, and these animals will have a grand effect upon the horse stock of the districts in which they happen to be used. Many horses of this class, however, have gone into the northwest territories of Canada, where there are many capable judges and where great attention is being paid to the breeding of heavy draft horses. There they will be used intelligently, and it will not be long until the districts in question are fairly well provided with home-bred stock of fine quality and utility. There it will be possible to find home-bred stallions fit for use on high-grade and even pure-bred mares, and the work now being done is hastening the time longer be necessary.

Dr. Salmon thinks it will be well when we can do without the imported stallions, and there is a great deal of common sense in his arguments in that direction; but in our opinion it will be very many years before we can manage to get along without imported stallions. The chief reason is that we are not using the stock we import in an intelligent manner, in that we mix breeds yearly and continue to fill the country with mixed-bred and mongrel horses. The next reason is that pure-bred mares are scarce and that it is no longer possible to grade up all horses to recordable purity of blood. If we at once are to supply our breeders with the stallions they require it must be done by men who own large bands of pure-bred mares bred intelligently year after year to the best of stallions for the production of stallions good enough to use in place of imported stock. Unfortunately, however, success has been rare where mares were banded topurposes. Greatest success comes from each farmer breeding one or two purechant showed them half a dozen other | bred work mares. Work is necessary toys, quoting prices on them. Finally to prolificacy and strong constitution. We want to encourage as much as possible the breeding of a few purebred mares of heavy draft or other useful stock by "common farmers' rather than many mares by large firms of capitalists. When this is brought about there will be plenty of good stallions in the country without going abroad for them, but our farmers will have to be educated to breed horses intelligently and feed them generousthe Maine state fair in Bangor, three ly before the present state of affairs can be changed.

Early Maturity.

Early maturity is one of the leading characteristics of our improved meat animals. Our beeves, our swine and our sheep mature now in much less time than they did fifty years ago. This results in a very great saving in the cost of bringing animals to maturity, because it reduces the cost of maintenance. Thus, it used to take a beef animal three years to reach the size he now reaches in two years. During all the extra year the cost of maintenance had to be met. This alone is equal to a large profit on the investment, and shows the reason Gouldsboro, Lackawanna county, why improved farm animals are far Pa., which was named for the late Jay more profitable to raise than common scrub animals. It also shows the reatown, he having operated a tannery at son why men will pay two or three that place before he became either times as much for breeding animals of the high quality kind as for the unimproved sort. There is also another saving in the food of production, as the digestive systems of such animals will make more flesh out of a pound of grain than will the digestive systems of unimproved animals. Value of Shelter. In the northern states shelter is necessary for most animals, at least during some parts of the year. They must have shelter from the very hottest days of summer and in the coldest days of winter. There is a line of comfort below which animals suffer if not protected. It is doubtless true that the degree of temperature at which a beef steer will be comfort able is very much lower than we have supposed. Nevertheless, that degree exists, and below it the animal must be sheltered. The latitude will determine largely the kind of shelter to be given. In the southern part of the temperate zone most farm animals require no more shelter than is made possible by an open shed, but in the northern part of the temperate zone the animals need to be sheltered from the cold coming from all sides. The animals that are not sheltered when they should be sheltered expend a vast amount of food in keeping warm. Not only this, but there is loss in vitality in the increased digestive processes required to elaborate fuel to be burned up in the lungs Shelter is cheap where it is needed. no matter what the cost may be.-James Williams, Cass Co., Neb.

STRENGTHEN THE STOMACH

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Really Cure Indigestion Instead of Merely Relieving Symptoms.

There are plenty of remedies by which you can relieve for the time heartburn, pain and gas on the stomach and can smother nervous sensations and induce artificial sleep. You can humor your stomach by giving it predigested food. But when you take your next meal all your trouble begins afresh.

There is only one sensible thing to do. Strengthen the stomach and do away with the necessity for drugs and artificial foods. The best remedy ever found for this purpose is the one that was used by E. E. Strong, of Capleville, Shelby county, Tenn. "For years," he states, "I suffered greatly from indigestion. I tried many different remedies and some of them would relieve me for a time, but the trouble always came back. "Oh, I see; he's in wholesome awe of the natives."

"You never made a greater mistake in your life, ma'am," the squire declared. "He's the religious supervisor of every soul in town. Even Hen Rollins."

The summer visitor looked her interest, and the squire went on:

"He got the upper hand of Hen soon's he came. That was in the winter. The Saturday before the first Sunday after he was settled as minister was a real old-fashioned one. It began to snow Friday night and kept on till midnight Saturday. Sunday morning there wasn't anything much to be seen, except the smoke curling up out o' the chimneys.

"I see where we set by the fire today.' Hen said to the minister, who boarded then with Hen and his wife. "'No fire for me.' laughed the ministhat there were no paths, that everybody would stay at home; and when The returned summer visitor asked he saw that the minister was bound to hold service, he said he might preach in his kitchen and they'd call the neighbors in.

"But it was church or nothing," smiled the squire, "and the minister finally got Hen to say he'd help him out in digging a path to the church. They started in with shovels, and as they went along some of the men joined them, for shame's sake, I guess; for although they worked well enough it was hard shedding, and they didn't relish the job any too well.

"They used considerable language as they dug, and Hen's language led all the rest. The minister never said a word. He was working as hard as the rest, and they thought probably he didn't hear. Finally they came to an enormous drift. Hen Rollins threw himself on his shovel and began to moisten his lips, when the minister spoke up, so's everybody could hear. "'We'll open this drift with prayer!" he said.

"Open it with prayer they did," chuckled the squire. "But all the rest of the drifts were opened in silence.' -Youth's Companion.

Points Out Evil That Threatens China

mulgation of Order Prohibiting Students From Indulgence in Opium Smoking.

In the Pekin Times appeared the following: "Chih Jung-heng, the literary chancellor of Hunan, has addressed an eloquent memorial to the throne asking that the habit of opium smoking be stopped among students. He points out that China's future depends upon a high state of efficiency, both physically and mentally, and nothing is more calculated to deteriorate both mind and body than this baneful drug. The imperial regulations with regard to schools urge the abolition of all forms of self-indulgence, and the memorialist finds that in those districts where the students in-

"Proclamations have been issued and much personal advice given in regard to opium, out these are useless, and it has been decided that nothing will have any effect unless the students are given to understand that no degrees will be bestowed on those who smoke opium. Opium is at the root of all China's weakness and corruption, and before China can hope to rid herself of the evil she must check the habit among her young

"Chih Jung-heng therefore urges that the literary chancellors in each province be directed to enforce this rule strictly so that the holder of one degree will be debarred from a second so long as he sticks to the opium habit. The memorial is being condulge in this habit of opium smoking sidered."

MANY KNOW THIS-DO YOU?

The following very interesting conversation between Mr. White, banker, and Mr. Walter Wellman, retired, two prominent citizens of the town, was recently overheard:

"I never buy patent medicine," said Mr. White. "When I feel the need of medical assistance I call our physician. I don't believe in taking a lot of stuff that I know nothing about. I know, however, that a great many do use it, and apparently with good results, but I am for getting a doctor every time."

"Your circumstances render this possible," replied Mr. Wellman, "but the majority of people must consider the expense. My experience is that some patent medicines frequently cure when the made a successful deal through accident rather than design. 'Could I live comfortably on that for the rest of my life? How much would my income be a year, say, without touching the principal?'

"A woman is afraid to deal with money in large sums, unless she happens to be trained to it. She can't, in her mind's eye, see how many liouses or rents or school bills it will pay for. When she hears of a large sum of money she always wants to know how much it's going to look in some concrete form like houses, or dresses, or trips abroad. As a simple quantity to figure interest on she can't realize it."—Philadelphia Record.

ALCOHOL IN MOST MEDICINES

Indispensable Requisite in Compounding of Some Prescriptions.

It is of course true that some proprietary medicines contain alcohol and nearly all liquid medicines prescribed by physicians contain it. No honest man will defend the sale of intoxicants under the guise of medicine; but every honest man should protest against a system of wholesale denunciation born of malice, or ignorance of pharmaceutical principles, and fostered by selfish interests. It is assumed that alcohol is the cause of intemperance; but there is a great difference between alcohol and whisky. If a substitute for alcohol could be found for use in the manufacture of medicines, its discoverer would render a great service to the profession of pharmacy and the science of medicine, for alcohol is a very expensive ingredient and a cheaper substitute would be gladly accepted. Unfortunately the word alcohol, in the minds of many people is associated exclu sively with bar-rooms, drunkenness and all forms of degradation and vice This is due to a lack of knowledge by the general public of the fact that alcohol is an indispensable requisite in drugs, tinctures and fluid extracts All fluid extracts and tinctures on the druggists' shelves contain from 20 to 90 per cent of alcohol; and of all liquid medicines prescribed by phy sicians more than 75 per cent contain it in large proportions. Alcohol is required to preserve or ganic substances from deterioration and from freezing, and it is also re quired to dissolve substances not soluble in water, while it contributes to their preservation when dissolved. Diluted alcohol is largely employed in fluid extracts; and whenever a greater strength of alcohol is required as a solvent (for extracting medicinal principles) the medicine is of such a character as to preclude a large dosage and for this reason preparations, even if containing 50 per cent or more of alcohol, are practically less intoxicating than beer. In such cases the character of the medicinal constituents is such as to absolutely forbid the taking of the medicine in any way except in very small doses and at stated intervals only. To assume that any great number of proprietary medicines are used as beverages is the veriest absurdity.-Exchange.

"My little daughter was a mass of sores all over her body. Her face was eaten away, and her ears looked as if they would drop off. I called in three doctors, but she grew worse. Neighbors advised Cuticura, and be fore I had used half of the cake of soan and box of ointment the sores had all healed, and my little one's skin was as clear as a new-born babe's. I would not be without Cuticura again if it cost five dollars, instead of seventy-five cents, which is all it cost us to cure our baby. Mrs. G. J. Steese, 701 Coburn St., Akron, Ohio."

Curiosities in Plants.

"The Crucifix in the Banana," is the heading of an article in a recent number of the Cass City Enterprise. This is found by cutting the banana with a knife at a certain stage of its growth. Something similar has come under my own observation. A friend of mine, Jas. Chambers, a scotchman, walked with me along the Thames in Ontario years ago. He remarked that n Scotland a certain wild plant, if the stem was cut with a knife, would show the letters J. S. clear-cut and legible. He looked around and found a plant that looked like the one he had known. He pulled it out of the ground severed the stem with his knife and sure enough the letters J. C. were plainly there. Now, he said, "these are the initals of my name, it stands good for that and Jesus Christ." I was young at the time and much impressed with this revelation and coincidence. After many years while walking along the Cass River in company with others I related this incident and it instituted a search with the discovery of a plant with similar results in cutting the stem. I do not know the name or species of this plant, nor have I looked for it at any other time, but there may be those whose curiosity may be aroused to look for it, if not as a particular botanical study at least as a curiosity. Letters to an American Farmer.

CLBYAYTON J. LAMB, OF DRYDEN, MICHIGAN. III Why the Trusts do not own the farms. It is cheaper to have the farmers own them, and then plack the farmer at every point. The change that is still going on.

DEAR BROTHER JO:-Really you need to be set right on one point touched in your eard of June 6. The term "Soparty. I say so-called "democratic" Grover Cleveland it was a bond holders', trust and straight-out capitalist party. In 1896-1900 it made a little to earn his daily bread. It proposes that each man shall receive from soclety the value of his service to society as exactly as that value can be ascereases to be a Socialist or Socialbecause of its unfitness to represent expression of class interests striving co-operation, it compels Socialism as for supremacy.

They all respond to the Democratic party is the political or- And they keep right on organizing ganization of Labor. When it "fuses" don't they? Even in spite of the old Labor simply repulled a that party the injunctions of big and little lump. Labor needs a straight, nonfusion party in its poli ical business, and it won't be happy till it gets it.

Say, Jo, if the trusts were not makthe farms? To be sure. Farmers are tion. "easier" for the trusts than hired men are. It is less trouble and more monmeans of transportation and his mar-'independence" of the noble farmer!

And again: Money is largely loaned on farm mortgages at five or six per utionist. ent, gross, or about four per cent net. If the capitalist money loaner could make more than the usual rate of interest by running the farms with hired labor, wouldn't they soon own them: Then don't you see that the "Independent Farmer" is more profitable to the capitalist class than the wage worker would be? But what is the matter with the farmers? Why don't they organize? Well, they can't except in one way which I will attempt to point out later on. The economic reason why farmers cannot organize is because they have not wealth enough to take them into the trust, and just a little too much to entitle them to fraternal association with the wage workers. They are neither capitalists nor proletari ans. They each belong partly to both opposing classes and wholly to neith er. They are each a house divided against itself. They are a mixed lota sort of economic hermaphrodite, as it were. They are each partly of the exploiting class and partly of the working class. They are exploiting themselves, and their wives and children, as well as their hired men, for the benefit of the real capitalist class. Apd organized capital has no use for them except to pluck them when they come to market.

Apples 20 cents a bushel to the Dryden farmer, and 40 cents a peck to the Detroit factory worker, 52 miles away by rail! What is the matter with the farmer? His market fools him. He mistakes his market. He thinks it is the capitalist who buys his product first. In this he is mistaken. His real

> An Audacious Schoolboy. The audacity of Warren Hastings as a Westminster schoolboy in carving his name beneath the clock on the western tower of the abbey pales before the audacity of another Westminster schoolboy, who secreted himself in the abbey in fulfillment of a wager that he would sleep in the abbey, not withstanding the report that the ghost of Bradshaw, the president of the court at the trial of Charles I., who in the time of the commonwealth occupied the deanery, haunted the building. He spent the night in the abbey and occupied his time in carving his name on the coronation chair, which bears to this day the following rudely cut inscription: "I, Peter Abbott, slept in this chair."-Dundee Advertiser.

THE STORM ON THE LAKES WAS FIERCE, AND THE LOSS GREAT.

TWENTY-TWO LIVES WERE LOST

SIXTEEN VESSELS WERE TO-TALLY WRECKED AND THIRTEEN DAMAGED.

The Tonnage Comparison With the Big Freighters is Remarkable— The Insurance on Most of the Wrecks Had Expired.

The entire chain of lakes was swept by terrific gales and heavy seas Thursday afternoon, Thursday night and Friday and dispatches from the many lake ports show that damages will be heavy. The weather bureau reports that the big storm which raged for 18 hours over the lakes, started in the southwest, but that the gale increased heavily Thursday evening after the storm center had reached the Great Lakes. Green Bay, Wis., on Lake Michigan, was the storm center Thursday night, with the wind blowing 52 miles an hour. Cleveland wasn't very far behind with a southwesterly wind of 44 miles an hour swirling over the city and that portion of Lake Erie in the vicinity. Early Friday morning it increased to 70 miles. The storm was over all the lakes and in exposed places on the water probably reached a much greater veocity than could be reported from the weather bureau stations. Lakes Huron and Superior were as badly stormlashed as the other bodies of water.

The wind began to diminish after aightfall. In the wake of the fierce storm are strewn wrecked vessels from one end of the chain of lakes to the other, mountourgeototolous, he must be the and under the waters the bodies of wenty-one sailors and one woman are buried. Included in the list of boats accounted total losses are twenty-nine craft, and the number wrenched and battered and temporarily thrown aside is almost beyond counting. Most striking in the storm is the fact that with one exception, the steel tug Perry, all the vessels to meet destruction were wooden craft. Curiously enough.

The total tonnage of the sixteen boats reckoned total wrecks is about 9,685. This is less than that of any one of a number of the great steel freighters being turned out of lake shipvards with such frequency the past season. Almost without exception, the wrecked vessels were without insurance other than fire. Underwriters think that $450,000 will cover the entire amount of damage done to that somewhere in this wide world a lake shipping from the great storm. of the Minnedosa and Siberia, whose

The investigation of insurance scandals by the New York legislature is to be followed by the most gigantic legal battle the world has ever seen. Millionaire grafters, whose united fortunes run into the billions, will, it plans do not miscarry, be defendants in suits brought by the attorney-general and by the district attorney to force them to disgorge the vast sums stolen from the millions of premium payers. Millionaire perjurers will face indictment for falsely testifying before the investigating committee while under oath Multi-millionaires will it is believed, be compelled to fight desperately to keep out of jail for crimes committed in the name of high finance. Only one thing can save these frockcoated grafters who have been plundering the widows and orphans and that is the failure of the attorney-general's office or the office of the district attorney to do their duty. Both officials have already indicated clearly that their offices are ready when the investigation closes to begin the fight which will go down in history as a battle of Titans of the legal profesalleys or kindred games in which balls sion and the greatest court trial of money powers of the country.

The crimes with which the grafters of fortunes from insurance funds may be charged are: Grand larceny, perjury, forgery, embezzlement and

This decision is holding over 200 persons in penal institutions in this state beyond the term of the maximum sentence fixed by the trial judge, as is the case with Robert Brown, the colored boy whose release from Ionia prison has been ordered and which will take place within the

The decision of the supreme court in December of last year is regarded by judges and wardens of prisons as not being sufficiently comprehensive to apply in all cases, because the case upon which the decision was based was of an exceptional character. The trial judge had not in that case fixed the maximum term of sentence. The supreme court has not as yet said what wardens must do with their prisoners in cases where the trial judge has fixed the maximum sent-

EMPHATIC UTTERANCES ON THE RAILROAD RATE LAW MADE.

The Work Done on the Canal a Guaranty That the Great Work Will Be Finished in Near Future.

At Jacksonville, Florida, Saturday, President Roosevelt said: "Here in Florida, the first of the gulf states which I have visited upon this trip, I wish to say a special word about the Panama canal. I believe that the canal will be of great benefit to all our people, but most of all to the states of the south Atlantic, the gulf and the Pacific slope. When completed the canal will stand as a monument to this nation; for it will be the greatest engineering feat ever yet accomplished in the world. "A body of the most eminent engineers in the world, both American and foreigners, has been summoned to Black sea last summer, and which advise as to the exact type of canal which should be built. At no distant date I hope to be able to announce what their advice is, and also the action taken upon their advice. Meanwhile the work is already well under way, and has advanced sufficiently far to enable me to announce with certainty that it can surely be accomplished, and probably at rather less expense than was anticipated.

"The work is as difficult as it is important; and it is of course inevitable that from time to time difficulties will occur and checks be encountered. Whenever such is the case the men of little faith at home will lose that little faith, and the critics who confound hysteria with emphasis will act after their kind. But our people as a whole possess not only faith, but not all of them have been vaccinated resolution, and are of too virile fiber to be swept one way or the other by mere sensationalism. No check that may come will be of more than trivial and passing consequence, will inflict any permanent damage, or cause any serious delay. The work can be done, is being done, and will be done. What has already been accomplished is a guaranty as to the future.

"Human nature every day dominates more and more all the political program, and its first demand is the destruction of the present system, including the killing of as many as possible of those who belong to it.

"Civil war is what they want, and what makes the outlook so red is that both sides are without leaders. Even the zemstvo Liberals, who regret it most, admit that the whole political agitation is rapidly turning into an accumulation of revolvers, bombs and rifles."

"When You Go to Sleep at Night"

When you go to sleep at night
In the dim and silent room
Where the lilacs' faint perfume
Steals upon the air as light
As the star-dust through the gloom—
Be your dreams as soft and bright Be your dreams as some and when you go to sleep at night.

In the tired wonder-eyes
Sleep has crept and kissed them down:
Far beyond the sleeping town
In the clouds the white moon dies
Fading through the starry crown,
Silently when quiet lies
On the tired wonder-eyes.

When you go to sleep at night
Though the world be wholly gray
May your journeys ever stray
To the shores of dream-delight;
World and weariness away.
Sin and sorrow shut from sight you go to sleep at night. dney Kennedy in Brooklyn Times.

Will you bring a who looked so lonely and forsaken as she walked around the big place all by herself. Somehow she looked like a prisoner behind the big fence that shut the house in off the street and I could only see her from my room on the second floor.

But I didn't know what her name was and I never dreamed, when I dreamed this ridiculous dream, that she was the girl named Araminta, who came to me as I lay asleep-or rather, came to my window and held out her hands to me as if in entreaty and whispered, right through the glass of the window: "Araminta! Come to Araminta!"

She didn't whisper where she wanted me to come to; neither did she look at all like the girl next door. But somehow the name took possession of me. It sounded so romantic, like that of some fair lady in wimple and crinolines from out the pages of a beautiful book all about the ancient knights, who rescued damsels in distress and all that sort of thing, you

In the train that morning going to the office my thoughts ran on that languishing name. The rumble of the cars seemed to be saying: "Araminta! Araminta!" You know how car wheels seem to talk sometimes: or at least how cars seem to talk when prison. they have wheels.

All that day during the round of my arduous duties of floor-walker the name seemed to be hovering in the air around me. Once when I had intended to call "Cash!" I called "Araminta!" instead and then I got the horse laugh for making a donkey of myself. It was the same going home in the cars. I don't know whether they had kept up that rigamarole all day long or not, or whether they just began again when I got on. At any rate, they kent repeating "Araminta! Araminta!" all the way home. They probably kept on repeating it after left them, for they were saying some-

I started to pull down the curtain, when some small hard object rattled against the window nane. I poked my head out to see if some mischievous boys were throwing rocks at the house, when I heard a subdued call which seemed to come from next door.

Yes, there was the sad young lady in a room on the second floor. I had not noticed that the window was own I said nothing of my part in the transaction. I soon convinced myself that the old fellow spoke the truth and that Araminta, whose real name was Mulligan, instead of Montmorency, had merely played upon my credulity. I suppose Susan, who had overheard my story of my dream had repeated it to the Mulligan girl during a servants' gossip.

Somehow "Araminta" didn't sound nearly so sweet after that and the chug-chug of the car wheels seemed to say, on the way to the office: "She fooled you! She fooled you! She fooled you!"

But say, "Araminta" sounded awfully sweet the way the girl in the dream said it!

It is equally suitable to creameries, cheese factories and farms. The procedure of its operation is so well known that any state experiment station can supply the required information. Every farmer that reads this paper, and every creamery manager, can make himself the possessor of the theories in practice in this matter, for the process itself is not patented, although some companies have been formed that claim to have patented certain methods in connection with it. It is safe to say, however, that none of these patents are essential to the operation of the system.-Elmer Ashton, Bureau Co., Ill., in Farmers' Re-

The greater the proportion of cream the less will be the weight, as cream is lighter than the milk. In the weighing of cream, the percentage of fat counts largely. If the cream contains 15 per cent of butter fat, it will weigh 8 pounds and 6 ounces. If it contains 35 per cent of fat, it will weigh 8 pounds 3 ounces; 40 per cent. 8 pounds and 1 ounce.

Milk for the City. Any farmer engaged in supplying milk for the city should be as concientious about it as he is about the nilk produced for his own family. He should not use any kind of preservative, and should see that the milk is fresh when it leaves the farm. Mixing old milk and new milk results in a great increase of the bacterial content, as the temperature of the old milk is raised by the new. If the morning's milk and the night's milk are to be poured together for one delivery, the mixing should not be until after the temperature of the last milking has been reduced as low as pos-

Ringer and Wing Making a ringer in the pitching of quoits must have been a part of the training which made the English longbowmen so terrible in siege that by gauging the distance and taking the lay of the wind they could send up a deadly volley at the exact angle to drop their arrows with destructive force into the heart of a beleaguered city. Getting the lay of the wind is the first thing to be learned in the noble art of pitching horseshoes. If the wind be contrary, the nicest calculations as to everything else will be in vain. It is only a supreme master of the game, a dazzling genius in its mathematics, who can play against the wind-that is to say, one who, if the wind be from the east, can, by throwing at exactly that degree of an oblique angle needed to make it meet the wind full at the point opposite the goal, may hope to have it carried to the right spot.—St. Louis Globe-Demo-

Clouds of Dragon Flies In Patagonia. "A number of years ago," said a California man, "I was traveling in that desolate part of South America known as Patagonia, a region I do not care to visit a second time. Among its curious phenomena I distinctly remember the clouds of dragon files which are to be seen on the barren plains. These insects fly before the strong winds that blow from the interior and rush through the air as though in terror of the gale which they precede. Nearly all are blue, but now and then one is seen of a brilliant scarlet color. You encounter a storm of these flies without any warning of their approach, the air a few feet above the ground being darkened by them, and men and horses in their path become absolutely covered with them. They are larger somewhat than the ordinary dragon fly, being about three inches in length." -Washington Post.

Named For His Satanie Majesty. The unfortunate disaster by which a life has been lost on the Welsh mountain known as the Devil's Kitchen has drawn attention, says the Dundee Advertiser, to the curious but seemingly universal practice of nast times in naming peculiar natural formations after his Satanic majesty. It is scarcely an exaggeration to say that hardly a county in the British isles is without some place or thing with the designation Devil, all of which prompts the thought that his Satanic majesty must be a holder of a considerable amount of property on this terrestrial globe. The Devil's Punch Bowl, the Devil's Bellows, the Devil's Beef Tub, the Devil's Frying Pan, the Devil's Lake, the Devil's instances which occur at random, scattered about in various parts of the Made Red Hair Fashionable. The French painter who won attention for his red headed girls cannot be classed among the great masters, but he made red hair fashionable and is said to have been responsible for the peroxide blond. Not until Henner introduced his sweetly brown and red what is necessary. It soothes the women to the art world did pink and throat because it reduces the white beauty find it was insipid to be fair. Red heads extinguished the cendree, and even the dark haired "washed" their locks until they were of the desired Henner colorings and acquired "tones" that were so warm they improved the dullest skin.

Shall We All Die of Thirst? After telling of the gradual drving up of the great lakes and rivers all over the world in an article in Chambers' Journal, J. T. Whitby continues: "Everywhere in our own country, as in others, water springs are giving out and water beds drying up, slowly perhaps, but surely. The increase of population and the modern system of drainage have of course a great deal to answer for, but much of the drought is undoubtedly caused by the rapid destruction of timber on all sides, for trees not only attract rain clouds, but preserve the moisture of the soil. While it is impossible for puny man to control the geological period through which we are passing and whose characteristics would be, according to some, the gradual disappearance of water, it may be inquired whether it would not be advisable to postpone that disagreeable moment of a world without water as far as possible by the better preservation of our woods and forests and the persistent replanting of trees."

Raw White Potato For Inflamed Eye. The writer wishes to testify, from his own experience, to the efficacy of the raw white potato when used for irritated and inflamed eyes. It is used as follows, but care must be exercised not to let the juice of the potato come into contact with any cloth or clothing, which it will ruin by turning black. The potato to be used should be pared and then scraped with a spoon into small fragments and a little water added. This should be laid upon a cloth which has been placed over the eyes, and then the patient should open and close his eyes as much as possible so as to allow the liquid to have its effect directly upon the eyeball. The patient will find great relief in this effective but inexpensive treatment. Of course the patient must be and remain in a reclining position.—Stanley R. Walbridge in Detroit News-Tribune.

Softening the Blow. A young Virginia woman who was very ill was approached by her colored servant, who sald, "Miss May, mah mothah dun had a cousin what had de same ailments what you dun got," "Is, that so, Cora?" replied the lady. "Yessum," responded Cora, encouraged, "but mah mothah's cousin she died, 'deed she did." "Well, Cora," said her mistress, angry that she should tell her such a tale at such an inopportune time, "if that's all you have to say to me you can leave the room and don't come in again. I don't want to hear such stories." Cora was thoroughly frightened at what she had done and wished to ameliorate her ill chosen story, so she thought for a moment and, turning to go, said, "Well, Miss Points About Pins Thorns were originally used in fas tening garments together. Pins did not immediately succeed thorns as fasteners, but different appliances were used, such as hooks, buckles and laces, century before pins were used in Great Britain. When first manufactured in England the iron wire of the proper length was filed to a point and the other extremity twisted into a head. This was a slow process, and 400 or 500 pins was a good day's work for an expert hand. The United States has the credit of inventing the first machine for making pins. This was in 1824. The inventor was one Lemuel Wellman Wright.

Figure it out on a rose leaf and write with the brew of a lily that nowhere under the great blue dome is there a creature half so pretty as a Kentucky woman. She's prettier than an evening star in the shadow of a summer sunset, more inspiring than a thousand songs and as bewitching as a fawn tangled in the vines of a wilderness of roses. She's our hope, our romance, our vine and fig tree-the light which enables us to see a million miles beyond the north star .- Springfield (Ky.)

The Pity of It!

A certain lady of wealth living in the north of Ireland was recovering from a serious illness and one morn ing called for an egg, which she ate with much enjoyment. As she passed back the cup and plate to her nurse she said, "An egg is a delicious thing." Then, with much melancholy, "What a pity," she added, "It is so commo mong the poor."-London Globe.

A Poultry Mill.

Mary's father was making the experiment of raising chickens with an incubator in his barn. The neighbors were much interested in this experiment, and, meeting Mary, one of them asked, "Mary, have you any little chickens at your house yet?" "No, but we're makin' some," replied the little maiden.-Lippincott's Magazine.

Optimistic. "Billy Bliven asked Miss Parseigh how old she was," said one girl to another.

"Did she get angry?" "No. She was flattered. She thought she must look very young or he'd never have dared.'

Day Dreaming.

It is much easier to fancy what we should like to have, what position we should like to fill and how we should act if different circumstances surrounded us than it is to put forth the efforts and self denial necessary to make such attainments. A proportion of life is consumed in this manner. This habit is justly called day dreaming, for as in sleep the brain, deprived of the power of will to direct it, weaves cobwebs that the first breath of consciousness dispels, so in this listless condition the mind, uncontrolled and unguided, brings forth specious fallacies that reason, when fully aroused, will utterly dissipate. These day dreams are sometimes defended on the ground that if useless they are at least harmless; that if they confer no benefit they inflict no injury. This, however, cannot be the case. Nothing occupies so neutral a position. Uselessness is of itself an injury, but besides this habit of idle reverie produces positive evils. Valuable time is wasted, energy is frittered away, the mind is enfeebled, the activities are discouraged, the present active life is rendered tame and insipid.
